

Trustee hopefuls invited

Trustees of the Pleasanton Joint School District Board request that persons wishing to be considered for the position open on the board submit a resume of their background and qualifications within the next 10 days.

Resumes should be directed to Betty Nostrand, board president, Pleasanton Joint School District, 123 Main St., Pleasanton.

Trustees last Wednesday night accepted the resignation of Joe Schwab, who had served on the board for nine years. Schwab tendered his resignation in a brief one sentence letter to the board. He had not attended a board session since June.

After reviewing applications of persons interested in being considered for the board position, trustees will select a number to publicly interview on or about Nov. 1. The board has 30 days from the time the county is notified to make an appointment. The county was notified of the resignation and intention to appoint on Thursday.

The public has 30 days from the time of the appointment to petition for a special election, should 5 per cent or more of those who voted in the last election (district) not be in agreement with the board's choice.

A similar process was followed approximately a year ago when Dr. Guy Clark resigned because he was moving to Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The board at that time ultimately appointed Dennis Reidy to fill Clark's unexpired term. Reidy subsequently ran for a full term and was defeated.

Schwab's unexpired term runs through March of 1979.

The present board is composed of Mrs. Nostrand, president, Earnestine Schneider, clerk, Dr. Ronald Ott, and Nancy Hawtrej.

They have regularly scheduled meetings a month on the first Wednesday.

Bob Graham's classroom mirrors the current popularity of "Star Wars" and science fiction in general. He uses this effectively to spark interest in his special education class. (Times photo by Mike Macor).

Space travel stirs young minds in Livermore school

LIVERMORE — Welcome to "Star Wars." It's easy to step into the fantasy world when the lights go off in Bob Graham's classroom for the educationally handicapped at Emma C. Smith School.

The music soundtrack plays as Graham, in his blue "Star Wars" shirt, flashes the flashlight on one of 1,040 individual words plastered on the black construction paper-covered walls.

Students are admonished to "Join the Force" and "Ride the Sky to Learning" in bright strips across the walls. It's all a part of the learning process, in this case word recognition, with a little fantasy.

Astronomy lessons are incorporated in the space theme, with blown-up posters of the moon and the various planets on the walls. A special touch of whimsy is added with traced, enlarged characters from the "Star Wars" bar scene. The strange, grotesque figures are scattered around the walls, with colorful posters of the movies.

The class will be going to the planetarium next month, Graham explains. Outsized stars also adorn the walls with the names of the 12 students. Students have made some tinfoil stars to contribute to the theme.

Graham, who once vowed never to even see the movie, must have been touched by the Force. Or least got a lot of inspiration from the movie, which he's seen several times. He plans to make "Star Wars" an ongoing project during the year, adding new ideas to the theme as his students learn new skills. Students will be constructing papier-mache planets to hang as mobiles.

The ideas are almost limitless, as Graham sees it, to teach the children while enjoying themselves. Or, as one of the slogans says on the wall, "Shoot for the Stars." Old Ben Kenobi would have been proud.

Castlewood sewer plant cooperating

OAKLAND — The cease and desist order against the Castlewood sewage treatment plant asked by Alameda County supervisors last week won't be necessary to get a speedy solution to Castlewood's sewage woes.

That was the opinion last Friday from Bob Scholar of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board, which has the power to issue the cease and desist order.

A cease and desist order tells a sewage treatment agency to refuse any more hookups to its plant. If the order or any of its conditions, is violated, BRWQCB can impose fines up to $10,000 a day.

Supervisors voted unanimously to ask for the order against Castlewood to insure that the country club and surrounding homes will do something about a sewer plant operating over capacity and threatening to pollute the Arroyo de la Laguna.

Supervisors also called for a county building ban in the Castlewood area.

However, Scholar yesterday felt that Castlewood doesn't need any threats of punishment to do its duty. Castlewood General Manager Bill Lovens agreed, pointing to a continuing climate of cooperation with the county over trying to solve the problem.

Castlewood can clean up its problem in less than a year, said Scholar. All it needs to do is build a pipeline about a mile to the West Pleasanton sewer line that runs to the VCSD sewage treatment plant.

Lovens estimated it will take two or three years. But Scholar said the potential roadblocks — the 1972 sewer agreement giving certain developers top priority and also the three year delay in expanding the VCSD plant — won't apply to Castlewood's emergency health problem.

"The Water Quality Control Board has the power to allow VCSD to take the Castlewood sewage even before the expansion. It just will have to be cleared with Alameda County Water District downstream," said Scholar.

Reportedly the ACWD staff thinks its all right — they'd rather see a little extra salt coming down the stream daily than the possibility of sewage spilling over into their creek. Presumably their board will agree.

Parking pact up for okay in Livermore

LIVERMORE — The city council will consider approving a lease agreement with John Regan for the downtown merchants' parking lot for nine months at its meeting Tuesday night.

Under the proposed lease agreement, the merchants would pay $820 per month until June, 1978. This marks a $158 increase in rent over the previous $662 rent. In the meantime, the city and merchants will be looking at other possibilities for solving the parking problems in the downtown area. The agreement comes after a long summer of heated discussion with city council, Regan and the 60 merchants affected by the rent increase.

Council members also are expected to adopt the noise element amendment to the proposed general plan at the meeting. The city council will not meet Monday because of Columbus Day.

The noise element and scenic route element are the last remaining segments required for the general plan. Both will be on the agenda. The noise element resolution includes two additional recommendations from the planning commission regarding techniques for noise control: to diminish source of noise by regulation and to locate noise generators away from sensitive areas.

City Manager William Parness will present a report on the Regional Water Quality Control Board cease and desist order, which will be on the regional board Oct. 18 agenda. The regional board will consider whether or not the city has complied with the order and its amendments so the cease and desist order can be lifted.

Council members also will discuss the effect of a Heritage Committee recommendation to give municipal property landmark designations. The city hall and old fire and police department building are up for sale, and the landmark designations will affect conditions of sale.

SR homeowners study traffic plan

SAN RAMON — Establishing San Ramon as a county service area in order to get better traffic control is a possibility the San Ramon Homeowners Association (SRHA) will study.

SRHA directors agreed Thursday night to find out if the sheriff's department would be able to provide extra traffic control service if San Ramon was designated a county service area.

Ed Laczynski, SRHA president, pointed out that SRHA would act as a vehicle for fact finding.

"But we will not take a pro or con stand in this matter at this point," he added.

One hitch to the proposed plan was mentioned by SRHA Director, Mike Wahlig. He said no doubt taxes would have to be raised if the county service area was set up to get better law enforcement for traffic control.

Wahlig added that from what he had been able to learn a "ballpark figure" for specialized traffic service would be $100,000 annually.

"I believe that would break down to a 15 cent addition to our tax rate," he said.

Sculptured wood scenes show skill

PLEASANTON — Bob Wood glances at his wood carvings, tells about his life-long interest in painting and tells his questioner, "I was brought up by a dad who said 'do everything you can including brain surgery if you can get someone to lay still for it.'"

What Bob Wood can do with semi-hard woods is indeed delicate, but it is most of all mastery of an art form.

A custodian at Harvest Park School, Wood and his wife have made vacation trips to Germany the past seven years. From his remembrances and from pictures, he has carved out three-dimensional scenes of Rothenburg, Nuremberg, and Miltenberg.

The wood carvings each took about 20 hours to complete. Wood notes that the staining process which follows, though, is critical and some projects suffer if the wood reacts unfavorably to the stain.

An employee of the local school district the past 2½ years, Wood also teaches an Amador Adult Education class in doll house building at Foothill High School.

He has also been trying to interest the district in having a high school-level class in carpentry-on-a-small-scale.

His formal art training was taken at the Jean Turner Art School in San Francisco.

Working in bass wood, he has turned out numerous carvings, many of which have gone to friends and relatives.

A high country hobby

Gary Clark, a Livermore Sandia engineer, puts himself through some highs and lows while pursuing his hobby, mountain-climbing.

A recent high came last summer, when Clark was part of the first American expedition to scale the highest peak in Russia, 24,600 foot Pik Kommunizma.

For 27 days, Clark and the team braved freezing cold in the most remote regions of the Himalayas. "After 10 days" of constant climbing, he relates, "all we could feel was numb pain." For the full story, see Lifestyle, page 5.

Critical issue seminar

Las Positas New Town, downtown plan, general plan and LAVWMA and the "cease and desist" will be among the topics discussed Friday at a critical issues seminar at Holiday Inn at Livermore.

The seminar is being sponsored by the city, school district and park district to "improve lines of communications between local government and the business community," according to City Manager William Parness.

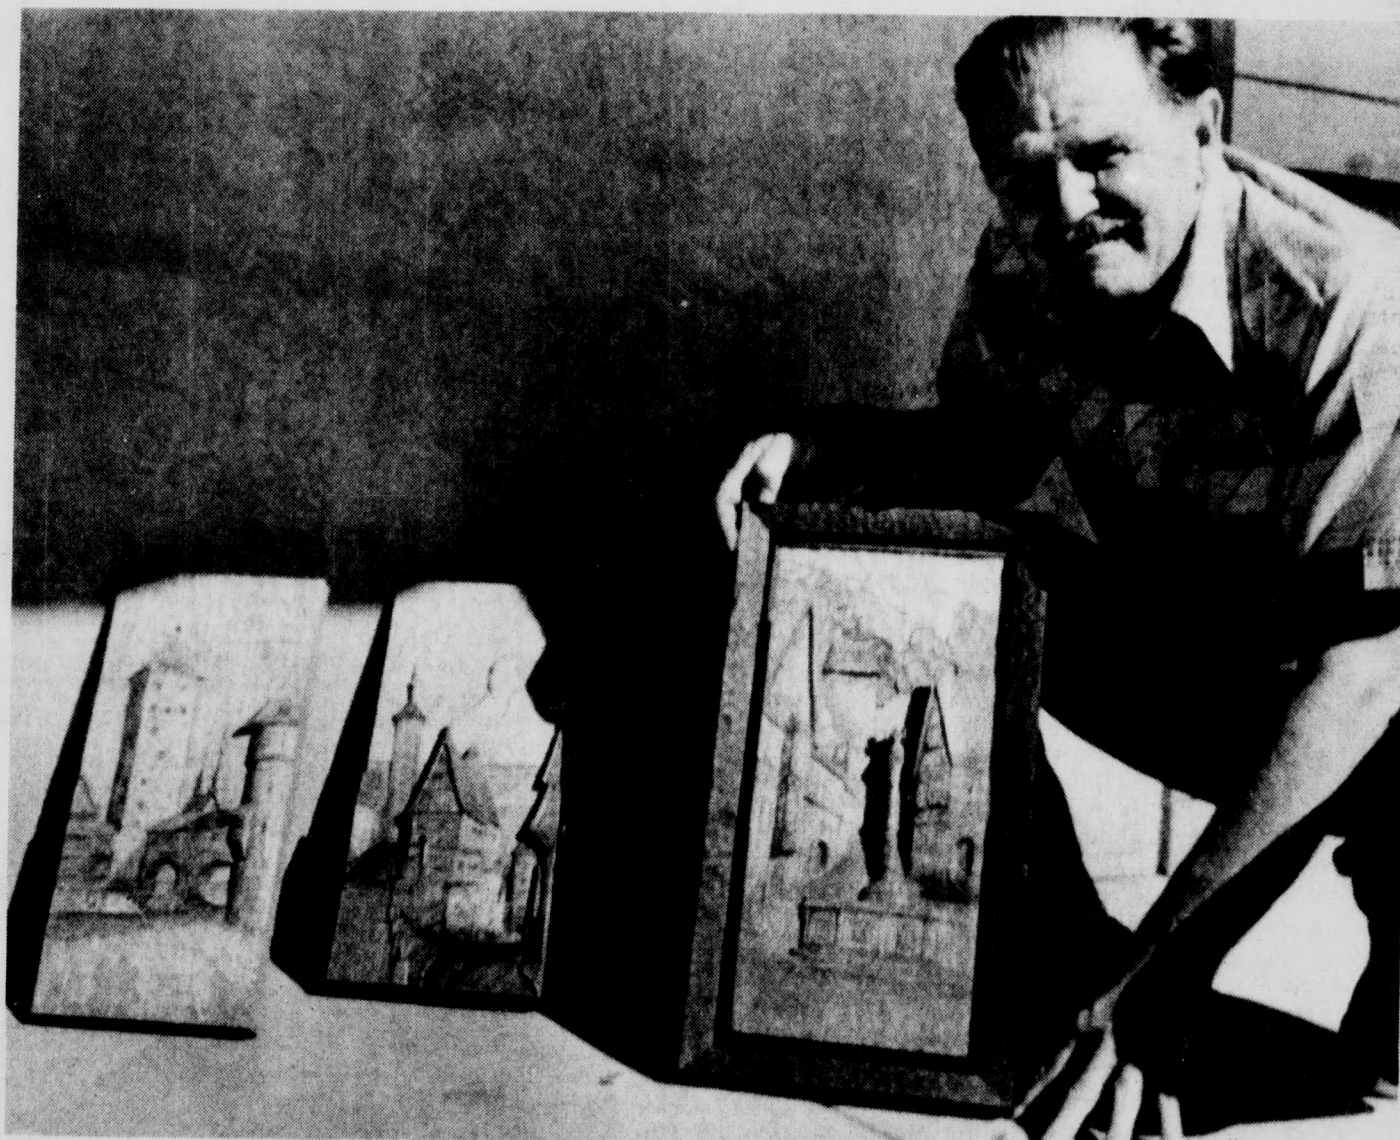

It will be held from 9 a.m. until noon in the King Room. Senior staff members from all three agencies will be leading the discussions and answering questions and comments from the floor. Time will be given to discuss any issues not on the seminar's agenda.

The Shiva Nova at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will hopefully demonstrate the viability of laser fusion when its 200-300 trillion watt laser is cranked up in the early 1980's.

Millions earmarked for lab buildings through fiscal '78

LIVERMORE — More than $40 million for design and construction of new facilities at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory is planned for fiscal year 1978.

The proposed buildings would ease some overcrowding at the nuclear weapons design plant, improve photographic recordings of non-nuclear explosions conducted at Site 300 near Tracy, and expand the Lab's attempt to prove the viability of laser fusion by the early 1980's, and begin work on a major fusion energy experiment.

A multi-story, 95,000-square foot building, known as the Information and Facilities Engineering Center, has been planned at an estimated cost of $12.3 million.

Designed to relieve overcrowding and consolidate some personnel now separated, the building will house approximately 350 staff members.

Another $10.9 million has been requested for construction of a High Explosive Flash Radiography Facility, allowing technicians to observe and diagnose high explosive experiments.

This facility, to be built at Site 300 15 miles east of Livermore, will permit better photographic recording of such experiments. Its completion is also expected in 1980.

Three million dollars will be spent this fiscal year as the first step towards a tenfold increase of the Shiva Nova laser.

Scientists hope to expand the Shiva Nova to into a 200-300 trillion watt laser. Additionally, the expansion would provide for studies of full-scale laser-fusion power reactor micro explosions, research on weapons physics and simulations of radiation effects on weapons designs.

The laboratory would house 120 technical employees, while a separate office building would contain 150 scientific and support personnel.

The Shiva Nova program is designed to demonstrate the feasibility of laser fusion in the early 1980's.

Approximately $14 million has been assigned this year as part of the $94 million mirror fusion test facility for design and construction of a building to house office personnel. This program is designed to produce an experimental reactor by 1990 to produce energy using water as its fuel source.

Congress is currently considering the funding for the above proposals.

New laws for handicapped tagged as Magna Carta

"A virtual Magna Carta for handicapped children" is how Wilson Riles, state Superintendent of Public Instruction, describes two new laws, one state and one federal, that went into effect this month.

"The laws, one based on the California Master Plan for Special Education (Assembly Bill 1250 by Frank Lanterman of La Canada), and the federal Education for All Handicapped Children Act (Public Law 94-142), extend the same basic rights to handicapped children that other children have enjoyed for more than 200 years," Riles said.

The federal law, which became effective on Oct. 1, guarantees a "free and appropriate education," regardless of handicap.

"Parents of able-bodied children are not expected to pay for their child's elementary and secondary education. Neither should the parents of a handicapped child be burdened with such costs," Riles said.

Under provisions of both laws, each handicapped child in California will be assessed for strengths, weaknesses and any disabilities by local school districts. If the child's needs, as determined by the assessment, cannot be met by the local school district, the child can be referred to a state special school or to a private non-sectarian school.

In either case, the child's tuition, transportation, room and board can be paid with public funds.

Riles said the state and federal laws also require that each child be educated in the "least restrictive environment" appropriate for the child's needs.

For the marginally handicapped, the least restrictive environment may be a regular public school class with additional services from a specialist or teacher's aide. However, he added, other children may be served best in a special class with added opportunities, such as field trips and recess, that encourage handicapped and non-handicapped children to know each other.

Riles pointed out that the most severely handicapped persons will continue to be educated apart from the non-handicapped in private and state schools.

The Lanterman bill, signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., on Oct. 1, replaces such labels as "mentally retarded" and "emotionally disturbed" with the umbrella term "individuals with exceptional needs." Under previous law, schools had to label children to receive special education funds. The new law allocates money based on the educational services each child receives, rather than on the child's handicap or categorical label.

The plan sets goals for the student and specifies the educational program that will help the student meet those goals.

Riles said both state and federal laws prohibit placement decisions based on tests that may be culturally or racially biased.

Parents are given significant new rights by both laws. For example, they must give written consent before their child is assessed, and they have the right to obtain and read copies of their child's school records. If they disagree with placement decisions, parents may appeal beyond the school district to the state Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The State Legislature and Gov. Brown have approved an appropriation of $58,663,850 to implement the master plan's program in fiscal year 1978. To implement Public Law 94-142, Congress has appropriated $24 million for California in the fiscal 1978 budget.

Blue Cross hit with union strike

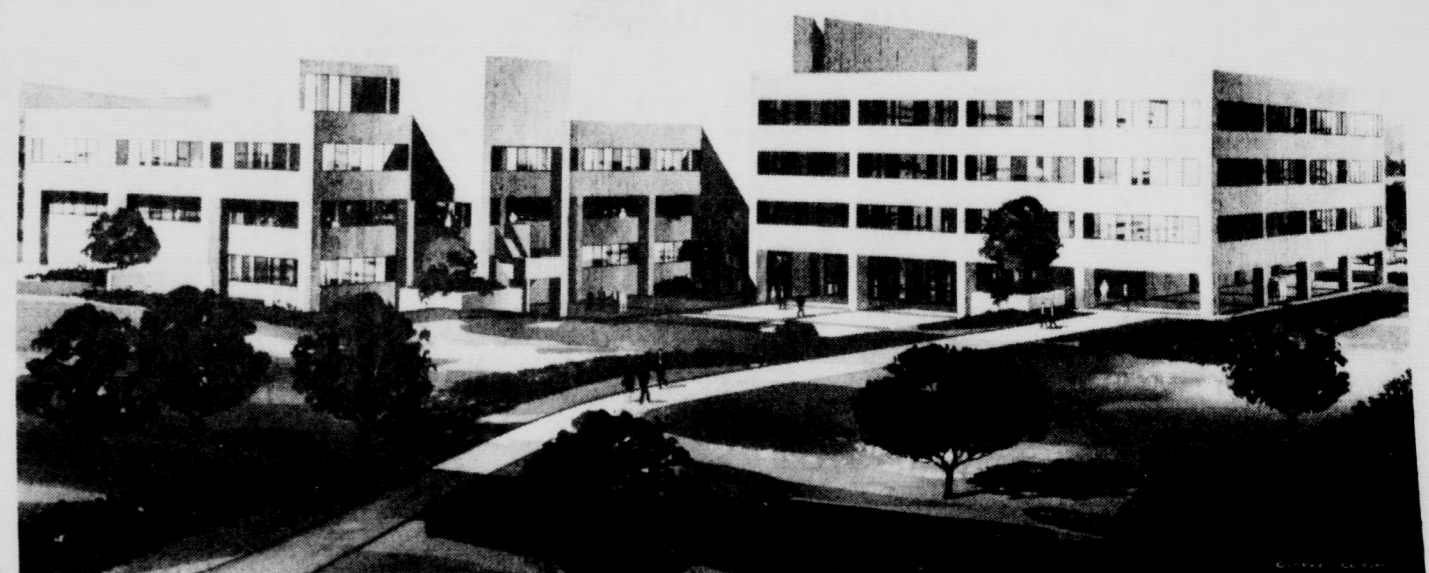

Blue Cross employees of Northern California announced Friday they are going on strike.

Linda Ertel representing the local union 19 told The Times that workers have been "unable to tolerate existing working conditions." She said, "We have negotiated in good faith to no avail."

A comparison of the benefits package for 1977 indicate a gross inequity the workers contend. The average monthly salary for members of the bargaining unit is $330. Including wages, company contributions for unemployment, and health insurance, the monthly salary for management climbs to $2,951 per person.

Ertel said that 27 managerial persons received combined wages amounting to $977,765 not including fringe benefits.

The rate by which a Blue Cross worker's salary is increased is determined by the Performance Review Evaluation Program (PREP). Based on use of the employee's time, PREP includes such technicalities as allotments for phone calls of more than three minutes and time for going to the bathroom. Workers are irate because such an evaluation is based on quantity and not quality.

An office building designed to house 350 staff members will ease overcrowding problems at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. Cost is estimated at $12.3 million.

Crew blamed for jet crash that killed Sinatra's mother and co-pilot from Pleasanton

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Jan. 7 jet crash near Palm Springs that killed four persons, including the mother of singer Frank Sinatra and a former Pleasanton man who was co-pilot, was blamed on the crew's failure to properly interpret their flight clearance.

The National Transportation Safety Board also criticized an air traffic controller at Palm Springs airport for failing to detect the aircraft's deviation from the cleared route and the crew's failure to recognize the plane was flying close to mountains.

The Lear Jet, owned by Jet Avia Inc. of Las Vegas, was flying in a snowstorm when it crashed into the San Geronimo Mountain 10,000 feet shortly after take-off from Palm Springs.

Killed in the crash were Natalie Sinatra, 82; her friend, Anne Carbone of New Jersey; the pilot, Donald Weier of Las Vegas, and Jerald Foley, formerly of Pleasanton.

The National Transportation Safety Board voted 3-1 Thursday that the main blame for the crash should rest with the crew. One member said he believed the air traffic controller, Leonard E. Sutton, should share the blame.

The board said the pilots apparently misinterpreted an order from Sutton and maintained their straight-ahead course when they should have made a right turn. The plane was flying at 9,000 feet when it crashed into the mountain.

The board said the pilots were thoroughly familiar with the terrain near Palm Springs and should have realized they were heading for the highest mountain in the area.

Co-pilot Foley, 43, was formerly a two and one-half year resident of Ridgewood Road in Pleasanton.

He retired from the Navy in May, 1976, and retired to Las Vegas, where he became a private pilot for Jet Avia Inc.

Foley resided in Las Vegas with his wife Paula and their three daughters, Susan, Missie and Brice, at the time of the crash.

First Class Boy Scout, Jeff Andrews, 13, of Pleasanton stands by a display of Boy Scout patches at the Dublin Public Library. Jeff belongs to Pleasanton troop 943. The display is a collection belonging to Jeff, Lew Gardner and Ian Frazier, all of Pleasanton. Gardner is a Merit Badge Counselor for the San Francisco Bay Area Council. Frazier is a Boy Scout. The Council Patches represent various areas, special events, Camporees and Jamborees. Some of the patches were obtained during the National Scout Jamboree held this year in Moraine State Park near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Jeff attended the National Jamboree. In conjunction with the National Jamboree, Jeff and other scouts traveled to Valley Forge, Philadelphia, Gettysburg and Washington D.C.

'There's a lot of pain involved—but the natural high is worth it. That lasts for years.'

Gary Clark, a Livermore Sandia engineer, walks through some of the world's most remote regions in his mountain-climbing experiences. Clark, part of the first American expedition to climb Russia's highest peak, has scaled mountains in the Alps, Andes, Himalayas, Sierras, Cascades, and all over the country. (Photos courtesy of Gary Clark).

The long hard climb—first U.S. team to Russia's highest peak

by Carla Marinucci

Gary Clark has, in the words of one famous preacher, been to the mountain top.

Literally. Last summer, he was a member of the first American expedition to scale the 24,600 foot Peak of Communism, the highest mountain in Russia.

He has led his own mountaineering team to Peru, to ascend some of the highest peaks in the Andes.

And Clark, a Livermore Sandia engineer, has climbed just about "every range" in the U.S., as well as those in Canada and Europe, both in the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

Clark's most recent trip which brought him to Russia for five weeks last July and August in an attempt to climb Pik Kommunizm was not an easy one from the start, he says.

The experience, Clark says frankly, was one of pain, endurance and "testing myself to the physical limit" in the snowy remoteness of the Himalayas.

But Clark has been climbing for 13 years now, and admits he "can't pass up a challenge."

When a friend called to invite Clark to take part in the Russian expedition, he says he immediately wanted to go.

There were some problems to be considered, though. The fact that he works for Sandia — where the government contracts some confidential a bit technology projects — was touchy, for Clark, since he was going to a Communist country.

"I had to be briefed by security on what to expect in Russia," Clark says. Although he was warned to prepare for "all kinds of cloak and dagger activities" in the Soviet Union, "none of it ever happened," he says. "I had no hassles — we were treated very well, and had complete freedom."

Clark and the rest of the team received an invitation from the International Mountaineering Camp, sponsored by the Russian Mountaineering Federation.

They arrived in the Pamir Mountains, in the southwest of Russia, and found teams from 21 different countries at the camp, all preparing to scale different areas of the Himalayas.

The American team was brought by helicopter to a valley below the 24,600 foot summit, "an area so remote that no people were living there," Clark says.

The Russians kept track of the group by radio relay at a base camp hundreds of miles away, while the Americans began their 27-day journey to the top.

Those 27 days, recalls Clark, were part torment and part exhaustion.

The group had to carry an average of 70 pounds each, and were required to make "multiple trips" over the snow and ice, to get hundreds of pounds of gear up the steep terrain.

There were muddy, rocky glaciers to be climbed, freezing cold nights to contend with, and one main trouble that comes with extremely high altitudes — lack of oxygen.

"The climb was impossible for the amount of time we had," says Clark in retrospect. "Our loads were too big, and every day, all day, we were climbing. The weather was perfect, but that meant the team had to take advantage of every possible minute."

"We had no rest days," Clark says. The climb put everyone "at the limits of their endurance. After 10 days of that, all we could feel was numb pain."

The continuing physical pain and agony, no rest and little sleep, took its toll. By the time they were 1500 feet — or about a mile and a half — from the summit, the team had been eroded by illness to only four members.

Clark, who was just recovering from being "so sick and weak I couldn't even zip up my sleeping bag," estimated that it would take him three days to reach the top. And only two days were left on the itinerary.

In an agonizing decision, "I chose to turn around," he recalls. "The climb is a team effort, and you can't bog down other members, if it gets to that point."

Two members struggled on, officially making the team's effort a successful one.

Despite all the pain involved, Clark says there is a bright spot in the mountaineer's world.

"The natural high you get out of getting to the summit," he says, "is worth it. That lasts for years."

And Clark does know the feeling of that "natural high." During his 1974 Peruvian expedition, Clark and team members reached the top of one of the Andes highest peaks — also after conquering exhaustion, weakness and the effects of altitude.

"On one side, I could see the Amazon River," he says, "and then, I could turn around and see the entire Peruvian desert and the Pacific Ocean."

Though Clark says he is basically "self-taught" in the sport, he advises prospective climbers to take a good course in the subject before they attempt anything.

"I came very near to killing myself many times" in the beginning, Clark says. "You have to be taught to do it right, or you just don't do it."

Part of the challenge, he says, is learning, through lots of experience, "to get over your fears."

Clark, who says he once had such a fear of heights "that I could barely function at certain points," says that climbers need "time and experience" to be comfortable at high altitudes.

And, he adds, climbing "makes a tremendous demand on your body — you've got to be willing to put in a commitment to fitness."

"There's nothing noble or particularly different about climbing," concludes Clark. "But once you start, it's a challenge to take on more and more spectacular mountains."

"There's a lot of pain involved" in climbs like the Russian expedition, Clark says. "But mountaineering allows you to experience things that no one else can."

Clark to speak on Russia trip

Gary Clark, who helped make the first American ascent of Russia's highest peak last summer, will be speaking about his mountaineering experiences in two areas this week.

Clark will show slides and give a talk for the Sierra Club Wednesday, Oct. 12, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Sonoma Avenue School, 543 Sonoma Ave., Livermore.

There will be a short general meeting, a slide show and refreshments, and the community — as well as those interested in the Sierra Club — are invited. The Club advises that, to be ecological, everyone bring a cup for coffee or tea.

Clark will also speak Tuesday, Oct. 11, in a talk sponsored by Sunrise Mountaineering. That talk is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in Sunrise, 2290 First St., Livermore.

Another way to do it Posh Himalayan travel

There are two ways to go hiking in the Himalayas. The hard way, and the way Linda Ballou did it.

"First class, deluxe" is how she describes it. "There is another word for it. Let's see, oh yes — decadent. It's great fun," said Ballou, a travel agent with Livermore World Travel.

She and three other Livermore residents, Wayne Woodruff, Andy Lundberg and Lyn Ballou, went on a trek to Nepal in 1968, the second year it had been opened for foreign travel.

A typical day, she explained with relish, began at 6 a.m. when the tea porter served tea and cookies to the hikers in their tents.

"Then we would put on our day packs and hike for a couple of hours. The trick was to walk slow enough that the tea porter would pass you on the trail. At 10 or 11 we would stop for brunch and if you walked slow enough the porter would have the hot tea ready."

Typical Brunch would include omelets, canned bacon from China, and native Nepal breads, chupattis and pousis, served with marmalade and peanut butter.

All the cooking and clean-up and packing was done by eight sherpas and 20 porters. Still, the party hiked 10 to 12 miles each day at altitudes from 4000 to 17,000 feet.

Ballou was the youngest on the trip at 24. The oldest woman was 70. She was a retired land surveyor with a heart condition. Everyone got to be great friends said Ballou. "With no shower, bath or toilet for 30 days, you have to."

"I brought back from the trip something no one else did * husband," said Ballou. She and Lyn actually married a few years after the trip but, "If you can get along for 30 days without a shower that's a pretty good indication that you'll make out OK together."

There was no technical climbing involved, but Ballou said only those in very good physical condition, with some backpacking experience should consider it.

And, only those with a few dollars saved up could probably afford it. Mountain Travel in Albany offers a trip similar to Ballou's that runs over $1500 plus air fare to and from Nepal.

"But, it is unforgettable. You can't find that experience anywhere else."

"It's a trip for outdoor people who reject the Europe tour and are looking for something different," said Ballou.

The photographs you're likely to take home would include pictures of snow covered mountains like Macche Puchare framed with close-ups of banana and poinsettia trees.

You'll also want a shot of the rhododendron forests and a few candid of the locals along the trail moving from their summer mountain homes to the warmer areas in the lower lands.

"It is unusual hiking because you're never too far away from small villages. Whenever they could, the sherpas would buy fresh chicken and eggs for our meals."

The natives were especially interested to see the feet on these hikers that made such unusual imprints in the dirt. "They had never seen lug soles before," said Ballou.

Betty Stallings, executive director of the Valley Volunteer Bureau, and George Bleth, director of the County Human Services Council, listen to discussion focusing on possible need for a Valley coalition of social service agencies.

Valley coalition seen for social services

The initial groundwork has been laid for organizing a Valley coalition of social service agencies.

At a meeting Friday of representative groups at Pleasanton City Hall, George Bleth, director of the County Human Services Council, explained the makeup and organizational flow between present coalitions and county government.

There are presently 16 coalitions in Alameda County, including the South County Coalition. The latter includes representatives of both minority and social service groups such as Project Eden.

Impetus for Friday's meeting came from Betty Stallings, executive director of the Valley Volunteer Bureau.

Mrs. Stallings said that 87 social service groups have been identified in the Valley. At a followup meeting to be held in about a month from now, representatives of these groups will be invited to officially form a coalition.

Those present Friday agreed to return to their respective boards and gauge their interest in being represented in a Valley coalition. They will each determine to what extent they would want to participate.

Bea Langlois, director of Good Samaritan in Livermore, and Mrs. Stallings will formulate a list of questions for the boards to consider.

Bleth initially told the group "You really have to know what services you have before you determine what you need. We'll try to do some analyses to determine what people need (in the way of social services)."

Bleth added the County Human Services Council is "trying to develop a decision-making tool. We're not out to collect data for data collection's sake. We see this as an on-going process to define needs of the community."

Working out of the county administrator's office,

Bleth commented he would like to see "an organized force out here. If you do decide to organize independently, we would hope you'd want to plug in to other coalitions."

Some $9 billion in student aid available but start plans soon

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer
An estimated $9 billion in government and private money will be available to college students who need financial help during the 1978-79 academic year, but you have to start planning now or you will be too late to get aid next fall.

The amount of money you can get depends largely on your family's financial status. National agencies like the College Scholarship Service of the College Entrance Examination Board take information supplied by the individual and analyze such things as income, number of children, expenses and assets to determine how much a family can realistically be expected to contribute to the cost of a child's college education. This information is forwarded to colleges and scholarship programs specified by the student involved.

The scholarship service does not make awards to individuals; it simply acts as a processing center and clearinghouse for information.

Don't automatically rule out a college because of cost. Aid often is awarded on the basis of something called "demonstrated need" — the difference between what the family can afford to pay and how much it costs for the student to attend the school of his or her choice. The same family may have a "demonstrated need" of $600 for one school and $1,000 for another.

The board advises high school seniors to start planning by reading college catalogues and selecting the ones that interest them most. Youngsters should write to admissions officers for application forms and, at the same time, ask about financial aid. Deadlines for seeking different types of aid should be noted and, preferably, marked on a calendar. Don't wait until after you have been accepted at a college to think about getting help. Many aid programs have deadlines early in the year.

Next, students should pick up a free copy of "Meeting College Costs," prepared by the college board and available from school counselors. The pamphlet includes information on the types of aid available and how to go about applying. It also has worksheets to help students figure out how much their families can afford to contribute and how much they themselves can provide from such things as a summer job or savings.

In December, students should get a 1978-79 Financial Aid Form from the counselor. This form, put out by the board's College Scholarship Service, can now be used to apply for the federal government's Basic Educational Opportunity Grant as well as for other types of aid.

Note: check high school and college officials to find out whether additional forms are needed. Some institutions and states have their own applications.

As soon after Jan. 1 as possible, the form should be returned to the College Scholarship Service for processing and analysis. It should include financial information for the full, 1977 calendar year. The CCS fee is $4.50 for the first institution or program listed and $2.25 for any additional programs. For an additional $1, the filer can receive an estimate of the contribution the family will be expected to make toward educational expenses.

About four weeks after the form is sent in, you should receive an acknowledgment notice saying that it has been processed and sent to the colleges and scholarship services requested. Review the notice to make sure it is correct.

There are two basic types of aid — grants or scholarships, which do not have to be repaid, and loans, usually at low interest rates, which do.

Most colleges administer five basic types of federal aid programs — Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan Program, the College Work-Study Program and the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. States also have grant and scholarship programs, usually designed to help state residents who plan to attend instate institutions. Other sources of help include individual college and universities, community groups, unions, corporations, foundations and religious organizations.

Assets such as equity in a home do not necessarily hurt a family's chances for getting help, although each case is different. Assets are included in determining a family's overall financial situation, but the Financial Aid Form includes a provision for an "asset protection allowance."

Away from traditional

Women seek 'natural' child birth

By MARY GANZ

Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Judy Bell had her first baby by natural childbirth five years ago, when husbands still were unwelcome in most hospital delivery rooms and many women hoped to sleep through the whole thing.

Mrs. Bell was wide awake when Lamar was born, and her husband, Tami, was by her side. "It went beautifully," Mrs. Bell remembered. But four years later when they planned to repeat the experience, the Bells shopped around for something different.

"It's really not set up for husbands to feel comfortable," Mrs. Bell said of the traditional hospital delivery room. "There are masks and gowns and don't touch this, it's sterile, and sit over there."

"The second time, we wanted something more relaxed, but not as relaxed as a home delivery."

The "home birthing" movement is gaining strength among women who feel they would be more comfortable giving birth at home, perhaps with a midwife instead of an obstetrician in attendance. For many doctors remain firmly opposed to deliveries out of reach of emergency facilities.

The Bells found a happy compromise around the corner from the intensive care nursery at Mt. Zion Hospital, where Mrs. Bell worked as a nurse. About the time her second child was due, Mt. Zion opened its "alternative birth center," a warm, homey room with a quilt-covered double bed that stands in contrast to the stark, stirrped table available down the hall for emergencies. Sarah was the first baby born in the new center. Mrs. Bell labored and delivered in the same bed. A nurse was with her through her entire labor, and an obstetrician appeared for the delivery.

A half hour after the birth, Lamar, then 4, visited his new sister, and the family went home together the next morning. Many doctors say the Bells are typical of a new brand of consumer, the pregnant woman who now has a range of choices besides traditional hospital obstetrical care.

"It's the age of consumerism," said Dr. Fred Berman, medical director of Mt. Zion's birth center. "In the 1950s doctors were still aloof gods whose authority was not to be questioned. But from hearing patients' requests, hearing what people wanted, hearing them talk about home deliveries, it was obvious that something was needed."

Some women, arguing that birthing is a natural process best accomplished in the familiarity of the home, have opted out of hospital care entirely.

The idea for Mt. Zion's center, one of the first in the nation, grew from the birth experience of Dr. Caroline Ballard, Mt. Zion's chief of pediatrics. She objected to many hospital procedures — mainly the mad rush from labor to delivery room — but found there were institutional limits on the amount of control even she, a doctor, was allowed.

In the year since Mt. Zion's center opened, other hospitals have followed suit one by one, some enthusiastically, some grudgingly. "If it will eliminate home deliveries, I'm all in favor of it," said Dr. Gilbert Webb, chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Children's Hospital.

Most obstetricians agree that alternative birth centers are almost as safe for mother and baby as the traditional hospital. But Webb and others are scared that an increasing number of women are rejecting traditional hospital births for home deliveries.

"We recognize that babies will be lost at home that could have been saved in the hospital," said Dr. Russell Hulme, a Santa Clara obstetrician and assistant professor at Stanford University. "I think we can provide the same ... social environment in the hospital and still have ... safeguards for the wellbeing of the mother and baby."

The California Department of Health lists 3,516 out-of-hospital births in the state in 1975, the last year for which statistics are available. That figure, about 1.1 per cent of the state's total births, has been increasing by about a tenth of a per cent each year.

Advocates of home birth say tension extends labor and hospitals produce tension. They say drugs often are routinely given, even if the patient wants an unmedicated birth. They argue that fetal monitors — machines strapped to the mother's abdomen to measure the baby's heartbeat — restrict the movement of the laboring woman.

Many hospitals that don't have birth centers are bending traditions to meet some of these objections.

Webb said Children's has allowed daytime "rooming-in" — keeping the baby with the mother instead of in a nursery — since 1955, and 24-hour rooming-in is available if the mother wants it. Husbands routinely are allowed in many delivery rooms, and many

Mori: 'Insurance crisis' hits government budgets

Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton) Wednesday morning addressed the "insurance crisis" workshop at the 1977 Congress for Recreation and Parks in Las Vegas.

Mori spoke on "The Insurance Crisis, Government Liability," at the request of the Hayward Area Recreation and Park District and outlined legislative steps taken to investigate rising insurance costs in California.

Government liability has been widened by the state judiciary since the California Tort Claims Act of 1963. A legislative committee is in the process of examining the need for revision of this law.

"In the area of government liability, we have historically passed from a period of near immunity to our present system where governments are hard pressed to even obtain insurance because of potential liability," Mori said.

"There is growing indication in recent court decisions that the government should face the same liabilities as private institutions. There is fear that the trend will force public entities beyond their financial limits," he added.

Spanish recluse wins Nobel for literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Swedish Academy of Letters on Thursday awarded the 1977 Nobel Prize for Literature to Spaniard Vicente Alexandre, a sickly recluse cited for a half-century of haunting, surrealistic poetry that "illuminates man's condition in the cosmos."

The academy's choice was a surprise — the 79-year-old Alexandre's reputation has been largely limited to the Spanish-speaking world. Such internationally celebrated authors as Britain's Doris Lessing, Turkey's Yasar Kemal and West Germany's Gunter Grass had been prominently mentioned as front-runners for this year's award.

The decision was staunchly defended by Lars Gyllenstein, a novelist and secretary to the 18-member academy. "It is not the purpose of the Nobel Prize to declare the current literary world champion," he said. He suggested that the world had finally caught up with Alexandre — "His outlook ... should be attractive to modern readers."

American writer Kurt Vonnegut Jr. may have summed up much of the reaction, saying in Finland, "Who is he? I'm totally ignorant about him."

Alexandre himself, who will receive a $145,000 cash award, was modest, saying at his Madrid home the award was a "surprise."

Wake up!

In Livermore the merchants and the city are locked in lively debate with city hall over the question of downtown parking ... how, when, and at what cost.

In Pleasanton a chamber of commerce committee struggles to gain recognition for the "Main Street merchant."

Even in Dublin, where there has not been time to develop ancient problems in the core area, there are fresh concerns for the future of the busy, sometimes crowded commercial hub which now spreads throughout much of that village.

Those are challenges which go well beyond the commercial sector. They raise questions which must be addressed by all of the community's citizenry, or else all of the community will be poorer for it.

Large urban centers are fighting against tremendous odds to recapture their core areas ... because the rot in that core degrades the entire city. Smaller centers such as Eugene and Walnut Creek have acted sooner, and with far better results ... both to the city center, and the healthy neighborhoods.

Downtown belongs to all of the community, and the community is all of the people. Preserving the core area is one fight in which all of us have a stake.

Hot air bags

The government of the United States of America is on the verge of taking another giant step forward for public safety, even while they trample on our private rights.

Manadatory installation of airbags in every new car manufactured or sold in these 50 states may or may not be a sound move to reduce bodily injury from vehicular accidents. But there is no doubt it is another move by Big Brother aimed at "saving the people from their own stupidity."

Americans have a history of being stupidly stubborn when it comes to responding to this - and that governmental order; particularly when such orders infringe upon our private rights. Which is often.

Airbags may be the greatest auto safety device since seat belts ... although even on that score the experts are in lively disagreement. We do know they will be costly ... in excess of $400 for the first - time installation and considerably more than that when they must be replaced.

The tendency to "save the people at any cost" is the new political kick of the '70's. They are kicking millions right in the pocketbook with each of these efforts. (The fact that they then bail out "needy families" with a different federal dose only robs of us still more freedoms, while adding to our eventual deficit.)

Every president, and almost every congressional candidate is heard to pledge "less, not more, government!" So when do they start? Not with airbags, a subject Congress thought so little of they failed to muster enough votes even to consider the subject, allowing a federal department to mandate those damned things by default!

Just what we need ... hot air from Washington, by the bagful.

How to protest tax

In Friday's Times a column on this page by Earl Waters recited the actions by two citizens' groups each of which seek to get tax rates and assessment practices onto a state ballot.

Some of you have asked how contact may be made with either of those groups. Here is that information:

Wiley Davis s has hopes to place the property tax issue on the ballot through popular initiative, and he may be reached at P.O. Box 2156, El Cajon, 92021, phone 714-442-2767.

Howard Jarvis has a campaign to freeze assessed values at the 1975-76 levels and limit ad valorem taxes to one percent. He may be contacted at 5155 North Crescent Heights Blvd., Los Angeles 90048, phone 213-936-4181.

The week in retrospect

School priorities

The Diablo Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa has just completed a survey of its membership to determine what they believe are the major educational problems.

Results of this survey, actually a prioritizing of problems, will be presented by Diablo Chapter representatives of PDK at the group's Biennial Conference in New York later this month.

PDK membership is open to administrators and teachers. We have had the good fortune to attend a couple of their meetings and found a sincere and dedicated interest in the problems facing educators.

Jim Scott, principal of Vintage Hills and Valley View Schools in Pleasanton, and Lloyd Teel, a Livermore school administrator, will take the results compiled by the Diablo Chapter to the meeting in New York.

Whether the priorities assigned by the local chapter will parallel those when all the chapters are counted remains to be seen. But the pulse of education in the Valley.

Following are the priorities, in order from top priority to 10th ranked:

- 1) How should public education be financed?
- 2) What are the major goals, roles, functions, and responsibilities of the public schools?
- 3) Who should determine the role of the public schools in the future and by what process?
- 4) What are the implications for educators of changes in public attitudes toward education, and particularly in public willingness to support public education financially?

5) What basic skills and competencies should all youth acquire and how might competency-based examinations contribute to their acquisition?

6) What principles should govern teacher selection, preparation, certification, and in-service education?

7) What should be the responsibility of the federal government in the control and financing of public education?

8) What is the proper locus of control in public education?

9) What family/school relationships and responsibilities are important in the provision of excellent educational programs?

10) What are the schools' responsibilities in the affective domain, and particularly in the development of moral and ethical values?

Scott says the first five priorities listed above "far outdistanced" the last five as far as the reaction of the chapter was concerned.

"These now become the input of the Diablo Chapter through our delegates to the Biennial Conference in New York later this month," reiterated Scott.

Scott also sends along a pamphlet entitled "An Introduction to Phi Delta Kappa" ... Jim being one of the movers and shakers of the local chapter and certainly one of the most enthusiastic.

We'll be following this up with another article in about three weeks on how the conferees prioritized the issues.

It should prove an eye-opener.

Letters to the Times

Save SRV line

Editor, The Times:

I would like to bring to the attention of the people in your area, the fact that the Southern Pacific Transportation Company, has an Abandonment of the San Ramon Branch Line, Track, between Concord and Dougherty.

A hearing is set for November 1, 1977, at Walnut Creek, docket No. AB 12.

If this track is allowed to be abandoned at this time, for all intense and purposes it will be lost as a Railroad.

With the energy crisis becoming more acute with the passage of time, the Railroads are the most effective way to move people and freight from point to point.

This line should be saved for the people and industry of this area now, and, in the future.

Freedom to insulate

Editor, The Times:

I've listened to rhetoric on the insulation ordinance since its inception. Now it appears we will be subjected to more of the same following the Livermore City Council's action Monday night, sending the measure back to the Energy Commission for further study. It is evident our Council still fails to recognize the basic issue and source of citizens' resentment. It is not insulating one's home, per se — I feel most Livermore homeowners are mindful of the energy situation and will take action to conserve energy where it is possible to do so — witness the voluntary cutback on water usage. (The City of Livermore at the same time did not even make a token gesture in the face of the critical water shortage to turn off Lissie Fountain which, to some uninformed outsiders, must appear to be a flagrant waste of water.)

The basic issue that is being contested is the right of the individual homeowner to make their own decision in this matter.

... I submit it is time the citizens of Livermore wield some good old fashioned "2 by 4" diplomacy on our city council to get their attention and rid them of their "Orwellian" attitude. This is 1977, not 1984, and we have not been supplied with our "happy pills" as yet.

Council member Staley in his recent letter to the Editor reasons that we should tackle these "difficult decisions," ... because if we don't, the State will "shades of the sewer pipe issue where ... the State vamped the Livermore City Council into its passage in spite of the citizens' objections and "no-vote" majority. I maintain that if we don't put a stop to these encroachments on our civil liberties at the local level, we deserve whatever the state may "lay on us."

Council member Dahlbacka waves the flag and states it is in the national interest. He does this without any hard evidence that the proposed insulation ordinance will in fact accomplish what is intended. It appears he assumes that if a little insulation is good, more is better — hardly the logic one would expect from a physicist. Is this the type of representation the citizens of Livermore expect?

I urge the Council members to step back and take a look at what they are doing, then table the insulation ordinance forever. Our interest would be better served if they would restore some of the homeowners' rights recently lifted. Let the individual make his own decision on whether he wants a tree in his yard and what kind, whether he wants to install an attic fan, or a deadbolt lock — it should be his decision.

Round the town

This has been one of my more scintillating weeks. A reader who took exception to that column about the American john ... wherein I observed "we johns are tired of being sat on" ... wrote to remind me that "John is a fine Christian name!"

I know that; my reader friend knows that. But how about the rest of you? Take john out of the bathroom, I say, and we will all be flushed with happiness.

Another reader had comment on my reference to that "high cost of flying to Australia" item. The $1650 "lowest possible fare available" is not so, says the man from PanAm.

"PanAm will fly you to Sydney for $1055 round trip, provided you buy your ticket 60 days ahead, stay no less than 14 nor more than 45 days." Etc. If you stay no more than 28 days, the PanAm tab is $1286. Plus taxes. And head phones.

Don't ask me why they charge less to stay more. I suspect the Ozzies and Quantas figured that one out, get us Yanks to stick around longer, leave more of our loot Down Under.

You can also leave some along the way, as your PanAm flight stops at such attractive spots as Hawaii, Fiji or Tahiti. "Makes the Going Great!" I think that's a PanAm slogan. Maybe it's Japan Airlines. Whatever.

One of the problems with PanAm prices for long distance travel is JAL. And BOAC and Air Iran.

"Their governments subsidize global jet flights while our government in effect penalizes carriers like PanAm," my jet friend notes. Something to do with carrying the mail, landing fees and so forth.

Anyhow, Uncle Sam could reduce international travel costs by doing less, or more. Not sure which. Write your Congressman, he knows.

I know one Yankee traveller who will soon stop over at Fiji. Uncle Samuel is about to buy one of us citizens a one - way ticket. "The United States Ambassador to Fiji." First time ever, I think. President Jim is now searching for just the right person, to represent our country in stately fashion whilst running barefooted on the beaches off of Nandi. Sharing a cool rum - and - coke with the international set at Hotel Suva.

Bert Lance would be my nominee for the post. He and the missus are accustomed to that lifestyle. They also wouldn't mind getting away from Georgia for a while ... forget all that nasty business about bank overdrafts, notes due and payable, etc.

Give him a year or three and ambassador Bert would be in charge of Suva's First National Bank, making low - interest loans to the natives. Winning all kinds of friends for America. Which is what ambassadors are supposed to do, buy us some fine friends, one way or another.

President Jim can't name Mrs. Carter as Ambassador to Fiji. She's too busy with Amy these days. Both of them taking violin lessons. Sawing away, back and forth, back and forth. Causing a terrible noise in the White House, I am informed. Everyone else is afraid to say a word.

President Jim decided it was a good time to go for a long jet trip himself. South America, Asia, France, Poland ... a tough eleven - day schedule. But not half as tough as having to listen to Rosalynn and Amy on the violin.

When we touched down in Fiji, en route to Australia, the Travel Lodge at Nandi was the swankiest resort on the west end of the island. (Their hotel industry has yet to get generous American aid, because we had no ambassador in Suva, naturally.)

It was just another Travel Lodge, until evening fell. Then the help put on grass skirts, fancy head pieces, no shoes. And wow! What a show. Right out of the Fijiian history books. Been stopping at Holiday Inns for years, and never saw their help put forth anything like that! Great native dishes too, I guess. I'm no expert on Fijiian food.

Ambassador Bert has the look of a gourmet. A man who has tasted the good things of life. Often and well. He would make a fine representative for these United States. Wooing the Fijiian farm workers, and the Indian merchants (who run most of Fiji's commerce. Don't ask me why. Same reason the Chinese handled most of Viet Nam's business interests, I guess.

The Indians (Asiatic variety) got into Fiji via the gold mines, I was informed. Something like the Chinese we imported to build our railroads. The Indians in Fiji stayed on to take over the nation's commerce. Big island joke, as you pick your way along Nandi's main drag, buying "native goods." But not from the natives, you can bet.

Maybe Ambassador Bert will change all that. Set up a few Georgian peanut stands. Bring a little variety into the Fijiian lifestyle. Bet they're getting damned tired of that Indian rice.

DUBLIN PASTOR RESPONDS

Prayer in the classrooms

Editor, The Times:

The editorial, "Classroom prayer ... and a choicee appearing on Friday, September 30 was well received on my part. Thank you for regular contributions to moral issues.

The question of prayer in the public school classroom has been a highly emotional issue. Obviously the question is not an easy one. Please allow me to give several of my own thoughts. I hope they will not add to the confusion but rather bring some additional clarity.

For those who are against prayer in the classroom, I have a word of caution. The separation of church and state as guaranteed by our constitution is not a separation of God and state. The framers of the Constitution wanted to prevent the abuses they had known in England where the church was a state church, organizationally related to the government. Therefore they separated the church and the state as institutions. This did not mean then or now that God was or could be separated from the state. Later, the Bill of Rights guaranteed to every American citizen freedom of religion. The system seems to have basically worked. We are all free to practice and propagate our religious beliefs without interference from the government.

It would therefore seem unwise for those opposing prayer in the public school to use the argument of the separation of church and state. Prayer is not an institution. It is a practice of many devout people.

I fear that the use of the term "separation of church and state" is often but a code word for a militant anti-theism. Those who are anti-God have a right to their views. But perhaps the public school is not the place for their missionary efforts.

For those who are for prayer in the classroom, I also have a word of caution. Many Christians are of the opinion that the United States is basically a Christian nation. Time magazine, in the October 3, 1977 issue, reported that 125 million Americans are on Church membership rolls. Another 80 million have nothing whatsoever to do with organized religion. If the truth were known, probably many of the 125 million cited above, are for all practical purposes also unrelated to the church. It is a by-gone day when America could be considered a homogeneous unit of Christians and Christian sympathizers.

It is indeed a mistaken idea to think that America was founded on distinctively Christian principles. The framers of the Constitution were at best deists and not evangelical Christians. America was not begun by the pilgrims who fled to our shores seeking religious freedom. They were preceded by thousands of adventurers and business men. America has always been highly religious, but never an evangelical Christian state.

America today is a pluralistic society. The majority of our people are either Catholic or Protestant. But a growing number are Mohammedans, Buddhists, Jewish, Adherents of Eastern religions, agnostics and atheists. Many of these people are very capable. As they become involved in government, entertainment and the professions, they gain a higher visibility. Who hasn't heard of the World heavyweight boxing champion, and who doesn't know that he is a Moslem? How shocked many were to learn that the California State Senate had a Buddhist Priest for its chaplain instead of the traditional Protestant or Catholic clergymen.

What does freedom of religion mean? Does it only mean freedom for Catholics and Protestants? Or does it apply to non-Christian religions and the atheists as well? I'm convinced that the principle of freedom of religion must apply to all. Fundamentalists Christians must understand and accept this. Christians are free to propagate their faith, but perhaps the public school is not the place for their missionary efforts.

I, for one, am a convinced evangelical Christian. I believe the Bible to be the inspired Word of God. I believe in the blood atonement of Jesus Christ. I believe there is no other way to be saved from God's wrath than through faith in Jesus Christ. I also believe in public non-sectarian education, having attended public school myself, as have all of my children.

My judgement in the matter is, first, that Christians should not try to make the public school system distinctively Christian. Naturally, if most of the teachers and students have a Christian heritage, there will be Christian overtones. I have no problem with this. But, the rights of the adherents to non-Christian religions, of the Jews, and of the atheists should be carefully guarded. This means that they should be allowed exemption from anything that would violate their faith. They should also be allowed opportunity to express their views, not necessarily on an equal basis with the majority, but on a percentage basis commensurate with their numerical strength. In this case, the Christian majority should also be allowed an exemption on participation if they so desire.

Second, those who advocate a very strict separation of religion and public school should be careful that they are not in fact advocating an anti-God stance. This goes beyond the Constitution both in content and intent. For example, the science department should be careful about teaching evolution as the only viable explanation to the question of origins. The social studies department should be careful about presenting world religions as "all saying the same thing in a different way". Administrators should be careful about cutting all religious references to the Christmas celebration just because a few object. In other words, if the Christians evidence a new toleration for divergent viewpoints, so should the non-Christians. There must be some give and take.

There will continue to be some tension on this issue. This is to be expected. Many people feel very deeply about their religious faith or their lack of it. I believe however, that the tensions can be significantly reduced if both sides of the controversy will be flexible, reduce their demands and practice some degree of tolerance and patience.

It is also true that the churches and Christian homes of our communities are well able to handle the religious education of their own children without involving the public school system. Let's let the schools do their primary job of teaching reading, writing and arithmetic without placing upon them the burden of trying to be super-religious or super-irreligious.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Until the last year my wife was what I'd call an almost perfect wife and mother. I don't think she ever even heard of gambling. One day a neighbor took her to the races and she started going every day and playing the numbers. Now, it's the only thing in the world that's important to her. She'd spend every nickel we have if I didn't keep close tabs on the purse strings. I hate doing this but I'm not a millionaire and I want the kids to be able to go to college. She's away from home so much and I worry about that too. — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: It sounds as if your wife is a compulsive gambler and she needs help as soon as possible. A compulsive gambler is someone who has a psychological need to gamble. They come from all walks of life, and if they don't receive help, they can destroy their lives and the lives of their families. According to psychiatrist Dr. Robert Custer, housewives, by juggling bills, can gamble up to $500 a week. Gradually, as the woman becomes more desperate, the family's activities tend to center on her need for easy access to gambling. She'll cut down social activities and household duties, she'll lie about paying bills, she'll do almost anything to feed her compulsive habit. This is an illness and must be viewed as such. Like alcoholism, it can be treated. There are many theories as to the cause, but Gamblers Anonymous has helped many addicts with their problems. If you can afford it, I suggest some form of therapy in addition to G.A. This is a behavior disorder, a psychological addiction that won't go away without immediate action. DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My only daughter and I have been very close until recently. I have three sons and, much as I love them, I couldn't share as much with them as I've shared with her. It would embarrass me and them. Anyway, she's met her first young man and I suspect she's in love. I can't help it, but I feel rather rejected and cut off. I know she's going to marry eventually and I hope I'll be mature and generous enough not to resent it or feel that I've lost her. — M.C.

DEAR M.C.: It may help you to remember that mother-daughter relationships go through cycles. Right now, it's quite normal that there be some distance between you. In the teen years, both boys and girls have to separate themselves from parents in order to establish their identity. Those who don't, are apt to be in real trouble, for they'll find they're blocked in forming close relationships with members of the opposite sex. The mother-daughter relationship is deep and intense whether it is filled with anger and animosity or whether, like yours, it is filled with love. It is the basis for relationships with a husband and other people. The woman who as a child and adolescent has known a mother's love grows up into a woman capable of loving her children and other men and women who come into their life. The man or woman who has received and experienced tenderness and love can give tenderness and love to others. Your daughter is now in the state where she's growing away, becoming her own person and establishing her independence. Once this is completed you'll find there is a renewed closeness. This will be a relationship between friend and friend, adult and adult.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had my right kidney taken out when I was in my early 20s. I have lived a very normal life, but now I'm in my late 60s and am feeling very old and tired.

Please, doctor, will you give us who have only one kidney some advice as to how one should live? How one should eat? Exercise, etc.?

DEAR READER — I suspect your feeling has nothing to do with just having one kidney. Nature gave us redundant systems, more than we need for good health. The two kidneys are a good example of this. A person can lead a completely normal life with one good functioning kidney.

My advice is the same I offer to anyone else in your age group. Eat a good healthy balanced diet that doesn't provide an excess of calories, one limited in its fat content, particularly saturated fat content and cholesterol. Exercise sensibly. For many people that means regular good walks. Avoid bad habits which include cigarettes and excess amounts of coffee, tea, colas and alcohol.

Feeling old and tired is not always a medical problem. It is often related to psychological factors. One of these is a lack of goals. As people get older and are no longer striving to progress in a career field, or make enough money to send the kids to school or pay for a home, the goals that stimulated the person are gone. Life is a lot like love — the chase is often the most interesting part.

You need to be sure you don't have a medical problem such as unrecognized anemia or diabetes or any number of medical problems associated with fatigue. Still about 80 percent of patients complaining of fatigue have no physical illness.

Personal fulfillment is also important. Do you have friends and loved ones and do you get a full measure of satisfaction out of such relationships? If not, seek out people and situations where you get involved in other people's lives. Boredom is an important factor in fatigue.

Have you had a change in scenery? It is important for people to have a change in pace and scenery that helps prevent the boredom that saps your energy.

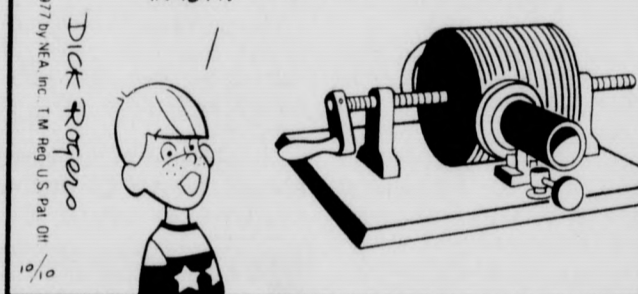

Are you physically active? Just slowly sinking into a state of inactivity leads to fatigue.

There is a lot people can do about their energy level that can help them to avoid feeling "old and tired" before their time.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHO MADE THE FIRST PHONOGRAPH?"

A. THE FIRST PRACTICAL PHONOGRAPH WAS INVENTED BY THOMAS A. EDISON IN 1877.

A new kind of entertainment was begun when Thomas A. Edison invented the phonograph in 1877.

It did not look at all like the record players of today.

It did not operate by means of electricity, and the record was a sheet of tin foil wrapped around a hollow tube, or cylinder. A hand crank made the record turn around and around.

To make the first recording of sound, Edison fastened a steel needle to the center of a small metal disc.

Next, he turned the crank of the cylinder, leaned closed to the disc, and shouted "Mary had a little lamb!"

When the sound waves of his voice struck the disc they made the needle vibrate. The vibrating needle scratched a wavy groove on the foil.

Edison then set the needle in the same groove and again turned the crank. As the needle traveled along the groove, he heard his new phonograph repeat the words he had shouted into it.

Contra Costa County

Four seek sheriff's post

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ--Three members of the sheriff's department and one former member have announced their candidacy for sheriff.

Incumbent Harry D. Ramsay announced last month that he would not seek another term, nor would he endorse any candidate in the June 1978 primary.

Filing for the office will begin about the middle of February and close about the middle of March, according to County Elections Officer Lon Underwood.

In order of rank, the candidates are: Asst. Sheriff H.E. "Bud" Hobert, Capt. Richard Rainey, Lt. Stan Kamrud, and former deputy William Roberts.

Second in command of the department since 1973, Hobert has 27 years law enforcement experience. He began as a Martinez patrolman in 1950, transferring to the sheriff's office a year later. He rose through the ranks to become under-sheriff under Ramsay, who later changed the title to assistant sheriff.

A Korean war veteran, Hobert served as a military policeman. He is a graduate of the FBI national academy.

Hobert, 48, lives in Concord with his wife, Bobbie, and two daughters.

Hobert promised to continue the standards and traditions of the department and keep career criminals in prison while emphasizing crime prevention.

He described himself as sympathetic to persons who violate the law in that he believed they should have humane facilities and that programs should be provided to aid in their rehabilitation.

He said his integrity has never been questioned and that he has made it a policy to resolve all conflicts in favor of the public.

Among his goals is modernizing the department's communications system and other facilities.

Rainey, 38, is presently commander of the detention facilities which includes the jail, the rehabilitation center at Concord and the two work furlough centers.

A patrolman for Compton police department for two years, Rainey left there in January 1964 to become a Contra Costa Deputy sheriff.

He served in the Navy for four years. Married, he lives in Concord.

Rainey stressed his administrative experience and education, a master's degree in public administration and a graduate of the FBI's national academy, as his chief qualifications for sheriff.

He believes the department morale must be raised to give the public better and more effective service.

He pledged to be responsive to the public and the department by providing easy access to the sheriff and by going out and talking to the public more.

As did Hobert, Rainey promised continued emphasis on crime prevention.

Kamrud, 44, presently assigned to the patrol division as a watch commander, entered police work as a Contra Costa sheriff's reserve. After two years as a reserve, Kamrud was hired by the Stanislaus sheriff's department later transferring back to Contra Costa as a regular deputy.

The 17-year-veteran has a master's degree in public administration and has worked in all divisions of the department.

Single, he lives in Antioch. He is an Army artillery veteran.

Philosophically, Kamrud shares many of Rainey's goals. Kamrud worked under Rainey when the latter was head of the detective division.

Improving the department's morale to provide better service is one of his chief priorities.

Kamrud said he was in favor of specialization where individuals showed exceptional skills. He opposed transferring supervisor-level officers through various divisions merely for the sake of transfer.

He pledged an open and honest administration.

He cites his administrative and law enforcement experience as his qualifications for sheriff.

Roberts, 32, left the department in 1974 to devote more time to his Concord business, Metropolitan Arms Supply. He also is a correctional officer at San Quentin State Prison.

He holds a master's degree in public administration and had worked in all divisions of the sheriff's office by the time he resigned. He has lived in Contra Costa for 22 years.

He called the jail as an ideal training ground for new deputies and attacked what he called the Ramsay administration's practice of using it as a place to exile dissenters.

The position of assistant sheriff should be filled by an outsider who has no ties to the department either through experience or blood—an allusion to Ramsay being appointed second-in-command to his brother-in-law.

Regional substations with deputies reporting to and from them instead of the central Martinez headquarters are favored by Roberts.

He charged that the present administration's top management is too preoccupied with internal problems to provide adequate leadership.

Island pupils stumble on basic test

HONOLULU (AP)—When 111 ninth-graders were asked to write the Pledge of Allegiance, not one could do it correctly. One response described the United States as a nation "under guard" and dedicated "for richest stand."

A schoolteacher, who asked not to be identified so her students would not be embarrassed, called the results frightening. She said all the students, Americans coming from varying racial and ethnic backgrounds, had spelling problems, and they apparently had little grasp of what the pledge meant.

The word "indivisible," for example, came out as "in the visible" in many papers, or with spelling mistakes like "vissable" or "visble."

Two students said the nation was "under guard" instead of "under God."

The phrase "to the Republic for which it stands" appeared in some papers as "of richest stand" or "for Richard stand."

The teacher said 12 students had trouble spelling the word "America." The word appeared in some papers as "Americain," "Americai," "Amereca," "Amicra," and "Amica."

She said that just before giving the test she showed the students a film of children reciting the pledge. And the youngsters should have been familiar with the pledge from their grade school days. Pupils in Honolulu elementary schools recite the pledge daily.

"I'm sick. I don't know what to do or where to turn," the teacher said.

She charged that students are being passed regardless of their skills, and that educational standards are not high enough.

Charles Clark, state superintendent of education, acknowledged that abilities of some students are not up to par, and said the department is working to set minimal competency standards at various grade levels.

However, Clark added: "It's going to take time to bring our students up to standards."

Federal report disputes Carter's coal projection

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—There's an industry advertisement describing coal as America's ace in the hole, but now a government report suggests that it may be a hard card to play.

That assessment by the General Accounting Office is subject to debate, for the administration insists that coal production can be more than doubled by 1985, to help curb the demand for imported oil.

In asserting that the administration target probably is beyond the nation's reach, the GAO study points to the fragile balance of programs, proposals and assumptions that make up President Carter's national energy plan, and concludes that the odds are against all of them working at once.

And that may be the most significant point in the watchdog agency's report to Congress on coal prospects.

The administration energy plan anticipates the production and use of 1.2 billion tons of coal a year by 1985, up from 665 million tons in 1976.

"So many interrelated elements would have to work to double coal production by 1985 that GAO does not believe it could happen," the agency said, adding that it will be very difficult to push production to one billion tons by 1985. The difference is the equivalent of 2.2 million barrels of oil a day.

That's based entirely on the technical, industrial and environmental problems of producing and burning more coal as a substitute for oil and natural gas.

It doesn't take into account the political difficulties confronting President Carter as the Senate works over his energy bill.

The Senate already has watered down House-approved measures to require that most utilities and industrial users of natural gas and oil convert to coal.

There are signs of trouble ahead for another Carter proposal, to use tax penalties and incentives to prod industry to speed a shift to coal.

Carter is pressing for both, listing them among his "vital measures to conserve energy and to replace our precious oil and gas with more abundant fuels such as coal."

But whatever Congress

decides, it can't make a law to erase the problems the GAO foresees. The study forecasts a substantial increase in U.S. coal production and consumption, but says that it will take time and a lot of money.

For openers, the GAO says it will take between 400 and 825 new coal mines, and 288,000 to 532,000 new miners to sharply increase production levels. The higher figures are about what it would take to get to meet administration targets.

That would cost up to $45.5 billion in new capital.

The GAO said it checked with 11 major coal producers, all of whom said they thought the industry could double production by 1985 and triple it by 2000.

But the coal isn't where the consumers are. It would have to be hauled, primarily by rail, which means more money — $5.2 billion by GAO estimate to provide the cars, equipment and facilities to move coal.

The railroads say they can handle the traffic, which leads into the next question: what about the environment?

Coal represents 90 per cent of U.S. fuel reserves, but now supplies only 18 per cent of energy needs. That will have to change, but it won't be easily accomplished.

Moonies 'free' from parents

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Court of Appeals ruled Thursday that the appointment of parents as temporary guardians for young followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon violates their rights to religious freedom.

Danville Moonie John Howard was unavailable for comment. His parents also could not be reached. However, John Howard's attorney, Ralph Baker, called the decision "a great victory for freedom of religion in the 20th century."

"It's important that others have a right to believe the way they want to," Baker said. "We're going to have to bring the courts into conformity with the Constitution."

Howard, 24, is one of five Moonies whose parents battled in court last spring to pry their children away from the Rev. Moon's Unification Church.

A San Francisco Superior Court judge decided in favor of the parents but 19 days later an appeals court tentatively stayed the lower court's decision and freed the five young adults.

Howard and Moonie Janice Kaplan are still in the Unification Church. Jacqueline Katz, Leslie Brown and Barbara Underwood voluntarily returned home to their parents.

Carl Shapiro, attorney for the Howards, who still live in Danville, said he was ready to appeal the decision.

"I just heard the news on television," he told The Times late Thursday night. "I haven't talked to the family yet but I assume I will be instructed to file a petition for a hearing in the California Supreme Court."

The appeals court's decision Thursday ruled that old laws the parents used to gain custody of their children for deprogramming were "too vague to justify the appointment of temporary conservators."

"If an adult person is less than gravely disabled," the decision stated, "we find no warrant for depriving him or her of liberty and freedom of action under either the former provisions of the Probate Code or the Welfare and Institutions Code."

The decision went on to say if there is brainwashing requiring treatment, the need for control should be ascertained after complying with civil liberty protections provided.

"To do less is to license kidnapping for the purpose of thought control," it said.

Turning to the First Amendment, the decision said even if the Moonie organization was political and not religious, freedom of association would be involved.

The court said religious views espoused by the Moonies "might seem incredible, if not preposterous, to most people. But if those doctrines are subject to trial before a jury charged with finding their truth or falsity, then the same can be done with the religious belief of any sect."

The appeal court also ruled that a request to charge the parents with contempt of court "must be discharged in the interests of justice." The court denied the request that parents pay attorney fees for the Moonies.

In a statement filed with the court this spring, Howard said he was locked in a motel room for days with no books, telephone or television while in the custody of his parents.

"I had all of my meals in my room and I was not allowed to go out of my room for exercise or for any other purpose."

Med center launches Save-a-Life campaign

SAN RAMON — A campaign to teach cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) to one of every four area residents will begin

Tuesday at the Family Medical Center. Sponsored by the Valley Community Services District and the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital, the "Save-a-Life" campaign is designed to teach CPR to 1,000 people a year.

At Tuesday's meeting, CPR will be explained and demonstrated, a film will be shown, and plans for a community-wide campaign will be outlined. Taking part in the program will be Captain Jon Ulrickson of the VCSF Fire Department and an emergency room physician from Valley Memorial Hospital.

Patterned after the highly-acclaimed Medic-Two program in Seattle, the Save-a-Life campaign is supported by the Alameda and Contra Costa Counties Heart Associations and Emergency Medical Services Agencies.

Representatives of local organizations and members of the community are invited to the kick-off meeting Tuesday, Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the lecture room of the Family Medical Center located at 9260 Alcosta Blvd.

Border patrol arrests 5,348 illegal aliens

PLEASANTON — U.S. Border Patrol agents of the Livermore Sector, covering the 49 counties of Northern California, arrested 5,348 illegal aliens during September. This was 527 less than were arrested the previous month and 133 more than were arrested one year ago.

Of the total arrested, 4,997 or 93 per cent were employed and earning the following wages: 89 — less than $2.50 per hour; 4,819 — $2.50 to $4.49 per hour; 68 — $4.50 to $6.49 per hour; and 21 — more than $6.50 per hour. Fourteen were receiving welfare or other public assistance.

Agents of the Livermore Station, who cover Alameda, Contra Costa and eight other Bay Area counties, arrested 237 illegal aliens in September. Of that number, 233 or 98 per cent were employed at the time of arrest.

Another splendid autumn day in the valley... the kind some one had in mind when they brought the sport of soccer to the verdant playing fields of Dublin, Pleasanton, Livermore and San Ramon. Time to pack up the kids and bring them to their Saturday match. Time to cheer them on win lose or draw. Time to catch the fading rays of Indian summer. For the kids, time to put their best foot forward in hopes of a newspaper photo, a few lines of type, or just the thrill of playing the game. A game that really is THE game here in the valley. On the upper left is Andrew Eller of the Furies, trying to figure out how to swipe the checked casaba from the Mark IV's Joey Sottile, intent on advancing the sphere up the pitch in Livermore Soccer Club action yesterday. To the right is Tanya Biletnikoff, wide open in search of yet another goal to add to the huge total she has already compiled in her brief career. She plays for the Pleasanton Girls under-12 team in the Al Caffodio League. At the lower left is Timmy Durkin of the Stingrays, a Livermore under-10 side, slicing ahead of his hurried foes to boom a kick up the field. Steve Atkinson captured these shots on film for the Times.

Soccer, soccer every where!

Glads rip DVC, 3-0

HAYWARD — Chabot College's soccer team got its usual sterling defensive performance against Diablo Valley College Friday, plus an added bonus — the offense came through with one of its best games.

The Glads came through with a barrage of 31 shots on goal to earn a 3-0 victory over DVC. The shutout was Chabot's eighth of the season, and with plenty of games left, the Gladiators have a good shot at the school record of 12.

The victory also kept Chabot within one game of Golden Gate Conference leader De Anza College. The Glads are now 4-1 in conference play, while De Anza entered the weekend with a perfect record.

Chabot coach John Shaw said he was happy with the way his offense moved the ball.

"I really feel this team is capable of scoring three goals a game," said Shaw. "Today they did it because they passed better and took much better shots. We worked a lot on shooting drills and it seemed to pay off."

Sergio Hernandez opened up the scoring 19:49 into the first half. Hernandez took the ball near midfield, dribbled through several DVC players, and popped in a 10-yard shot to the left corner of the cage.

Chabot picked up its remaining two goals in the second half, both of them by wing Jeff Mulso. Mulso's first goal was a 25 yards out. The ball landed in the upper right corner of the cage, just out of the DVC goalies' reach.

Just five minutes later, at 24:20 of the final period, Mulso struck again. Mulso found himself open from 15 yards out directly in front of the goal. As he kicked the ball it appeared to be heading for the top of the cage, and Mulso was already celebrating when the ball just nicked the crossbar and bounded out.

He managed to recover, though, and captured the rebound to finally get the score. Chabot goalie Pete Howard racked up his second shutout in a row. Although Diablo Valley made only 10 shots on goal, Howard had to save seven of them. Several of the saves were on hard shots, but Howard easily smothered all of them.

Diablo Valley's record fell to 0-5 in GGC play. Shaw started his second-string team and played them the majority of the game. "We had a lot of respect for DVC, despite their record," said Shaw. "I started the second team because they hadn't played much. So many of our games lately have been close that I've had to rely pretty much on the first string."

Chabot will have a chance to move into a first-place tie with De Anza when they play the Dons in Cupertino Tuesday.

49ers meet Atlanta

SAN FRAN. (AP) — Gamblers contend that on a given day any NFL team can beat any other. And a look at the betting line on Sunday's Falcons-49ers game proves odds-makers can also be unpredictable.

Despite an impressive 2-1 start that includes a 17-6 opening game win over the Rams, Atlanta is listed as a four-point underdog to hapless San Francisco, 1-8 including exhibition games.

Part of the reason is that Atlanta's first string quarterback, Steve Bartkowski, is expected to remain sidelined with a knee injury. But rookie Falcon Coach Leeman Bennett thinks the 49ers deserve more respect than their record would indicate.

"Those 49ers are a much better team than they've been playing," he insisted at a recent practice.

"The 49ers have two good running backs and it looks like Jim Plunkett is starting to throw the ball well. It is a wellbalanced team and has as good a front-four on defense as we will see this year," he said.

But the Falcons own defense is a source of pride for him.

Last year Atlanta was second from the bottom to Tampa Bay in yardage allowed, giving up an average of more than 327 total yards a game.

This year the Falcon defense ranks first in the league, having allowed only 19 points in three games, 89.7 yards a game rushing and 198.7 a game total offense.

They have also forced 10 turnovers, as opposed to two for the 49ers. The defensive line, anchored by end Claude Humphrey, has sacked opposing quarterbacks 15 times, seven sacks more than the 49ers have. Offensively the Falcons have relied on a "grind-it-out" ballcontrol offense that has given them 50 more plays from scrimmage than opponents.

Quarterback Scott Hunter's favorite target has been Alfred Jenkins — the same duo teamed up for a pair of touchdowns to beat San Francisco last year.

Bennett, who along with 49er Coach Ken Meyer worked as an assistant under Ram coach Chuck Knox last year, reviewed San Francisco's performance in this light:

"The 49ers seem to be moving the ball well, but something seems to go wrong when they get near the goal line. The films show that they have a fumble or a penalty on almost every good drive. But I know the talent they have from the years I prepared for them when I was with Los Angeles."

Warriors win, 95-93

PORTLAND — The Golden State Warriors met the Seattle SuperSonics in the first game of a National Basketball Association preseason double header here last night after beating the Portland Trail Blazers, 95-93, Friday night in Seattle.

Rick Barry, despite bone chips in his left knee, led the Warriors with 22 points while Robert Parish added 16, Sonny Parker 13 and Ricky Green 10.

De Anza still atop the GGC

OAKLAND — Laney College, the surprise Golden Gate Conference co-leader before the game, came out as high as a helium balloon before its game with DeAnza Friday night.

The Eagles took a 20-0 lead in the first quarter, but by game's end high-flying Laney had been deflated, 23-20. Quarterback Rob Bachanas threw a six-yard touchdown pass to Craig Blakeway for the game-winner with :42 to play.

In other GGC action Friday night, Ralph Constanzo ran for two TDs and passed for another as San Mateo, now 2-1 and tied with Laney for second behind undefeated DeAnza, dumped the Foothill Owls, 24-7.

Last night, San Francisco met San Jose and West Valley visited Diablo Valley in the Viking Bowl. Chabot drew a bye this week.

Johnny Farfan returns key interception in Cowboy win Friday.

Raiders hope to keep momentum

CLEVELAND (AP) — Oakland Raiders Coach John Madden, who hasn't taken off his Super Bowl ring since the Raiders won the world championship, disagrees with the idea that it's harder to stay on top than it is to get there.

The late Vince Lombardi used to say it was easier to get to the top than to stay there. "I don't think that's true," Madden said. "If you've never been there, you don't really know what you're going for. When you've been to the Super Bowl and won, you know the reward."

The diamond and black stone ring presented to all the champion Raiders was gleaming on Madden's hand as he spoke after settling his team into a Cleveland hotel Friday.

Madden is evidently proud of the symbol of pro football supremacy. "You don't really know what it's like until you do it," Madden said. "Then the feeling is so great you could take the greatest feeling you've ever had and multiply it 100 or 1,000 times and still not know how great it really is.

"And I can tell you this. Once you've won it and have enjoyed that special feeling you never want to lose it."

The Raiders were scheduled to practice at Municipal Stadium today before facing the Cleveland Browns before some 80,000 fans Sunday.

Lombardi used to point to the problem of players getting complacent once they had made it to the top, but Oakland hasn't slowed down any. They shut out San Diego in their National Football League season opener and haven't lost since.

In fact, they meet the Browns, 2-1, after a string of 16 victories. Asked if such a winning streak could burden the team, Madden replied: "It's an old cliché about playing them one at a time, but that's really what we do. We start over each week and think only of that next opponent. You have to do that in this league."

The Raiders are coming out of a short work week after their Monday night victory over Kansas City and will be playing without several regulars.

"It has to hurt to have quality players such as Jack Vella and Phil Villapiano out, and Jack Tatum is questionable," Madden said. Vella has a knee injury, Villapiano is out for the season after knee surgery and Tatum has a groin injury.

Madden described the Browns as a team with a foot on the ladder, saying they have young players in every area along with quality veterans so "they know it will be better next year and the year after. That's a good feeling."

Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe is expected to be ready Sunday and wide receiver Paul Warfield may be. Sipe suffered a shoulder injury in last week's game against Pittsburgh and Warfield sprained an ankle Wednesday.

Livermore D-roys San Ramon

Awesome in the first half and outstanding in the second, the Livermore High School football team's defense shut down visiting San Ramon, 14-6, Friday night.

San Ramon came into the game with some big-figure victories to its credit, but Livermore held it to 34 yards in the first half and got to quarterback Guy Houston seven times for a loss of 67 yards.

The Wolves managed to up their total offense figure to 109 by game's end, but a lot of the late San Ramon gains came with six and seven Cowboy linemen, their taste whetted by unlimited early success, teeing off on the beleaguered Houston, allowing Guy to dump the ball off to a waiting back.

"The defense did a hell of a job again," said Livermore coach Ron Berg, understating the case despite his elation at getting past the 'Pokes first major hurdle to a defense of their East Bay Athletic League co-championship. Then, he proceeded to rattle off the names of those who did well on defense.

Got a few hours? Ron Rodriguez, John Farfan, Greg Tennyson, Jeff Davidson, Kevin Fitzpatrick, Steve Allen, Dean Lindsey and Bob Thompson all came in for mention. If your favorite isn't listed, don't fret, he probably did well, too. Reporters can only write so fast.

"They were jacked up," San Ramon coach Lyle Stencich managed, perhaps not knowing that the Cowboy seniors had never beaten San Ramon during their frosh, JV and varsity careers.

Still, two first quarter Livermore drives fell short and it was a punt return that put the Cowboys on the scoreboard first.

With 3:03 to go in the first quarter, Houston punted 37 yards to Les Jacob at the Livermore 41. Jacob slipped several would-be tacklers in the middle of the field, turned the corner and outran what was left of the Wolf coverage for a 59-yard touchdown.

Jeff Perry, as he did on the later 'Poke TD, added the extra point.

Livermore put together the only scoring drive of the game in the following period. Moving 55 yards in 10 plays, the Cowboys moved steadily up field as Steve Culy, Pete Martinez and quarterback Naish Piazza ran for five or more yards at a time.

Finally, with 3:52 left in the half, Culy slammed over the left side of the line and a Tennyson block for the TD. San Ramon end Dave Schmidt broke his wrist on the play and may be lost for the season.

No one on the Livermore side of the field, however, thought it was in the bag, despite the appalling lack of offense from the Wolves, who had scored 35 points against Del Valle, 59 against Alhambra and 31 against Foothill.

"They're a good football team," Berg said. "We knew they could come back."

When they did, it really wasn't a classic scoring thrust. In the final minute of the third quarter, Piazza took a little too long getting a punt away, had to side-step one San Ramon rusher and had his kick blocked by Phil Strother.

Mike Campbell picked the ball up at the two and was dragged down across the goal line for SR's only score. Houston hit Campbell with the two-point conversion pass, but Mike was out of bounds.

San Ramon wasn't finished. Twice in the fourth quarter, they drove into Livermore territory, but on the first, Houston was hit by Rodriguez and fumbled into the arms of Tennyson.

With two minutes to go, San Ramon had the ball at the Cowboy 41 and Houston completed a 12-yard pass to Randy Huddleston, but Campbell was called for a downfield block and, all of a sudden, instead of first and ten at the Livermore 29, San Ramon faced a second and 25 at their own 46.

Houston was sacked by Rodriguez on the next play and, two plays later, his fourth and 35 pass was picked off by Farfan to put it on ice.

"They're a great defensive club," admitted Stencich, who added, "Those two penalties at the end really hurt. But the tempo of the game belonged to them."

Next week, Livermore will meet yet another unbeaten team, Amador.

Berg said that "next week's" game would be Livermore's toughest, but he was talking philosophy not specifics. "We play 'em one at a time," he said. — by Dave Weber

Finds new QB

Dublin upsets Mats

Dublin High School used something it hasn't resorted to much in the past two seasons — the pass — to edge past host Granada 13-12 in an East Bay Athletic League football game Friday night in Livermore.

The main architects of the new-found passing game were junior quarterback Derrick Woolridge and senior split end Dan Pearson.

Woolridge, who replaced senior Mike Hardy last week, completed 15 of 18 passes for 199 yards and one touchdown. Pearson was on the receiving end of 12 of those completions for 149 yards and the Gaels' first score.

"I got more confident with my passing as we practiced this week," Woolridge said after the contest. "We threw mostly to Dan (Pearson) because he's our main receiver."

The Matadors hit the scoreboard first when senior quarterback Steve Robison hit split end Eric Conklin on a nine-yard pass with 9:08 left in the second quarter. On a second-and-six situation from the nine Conklin broke to the right and caught Robison's throw in the corner of the end zone.

The catch culminated a 37-yard drive in six plays that was started when Robison intercepted a Woolridge pass (Derrick's only error of the night). Conklin made the big play of the drive when he caught a 22-yard pass from Robison on fourth and eight from the 35. Robert Jamieson ran four yards before Conklin caught the touchdown throw from Robison.

However, the Gaels came back on a 76-yard drive in 16 plays that saw Woolridge throw a 13-yard pass to Pearson for the score.

Senior Jon Batchelor supplied the bulk of the running in the drive when he ran for 19 yards in four plays. Pearson had two 15-yard receptions in the drive.

Dublin scored the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter with 6:47 left when Batchelor swept around left end from four yards out. Batchelor's burst ended a 50-yard drive in four plays. Tight end Mark Martin caught a 45-yard pass from Woolridge to set up the score. Three plays later Batchelor scored.

Kevin Dick kicked what turned out to be the winning point.

Gaels whip Mats

But the Matadors came back on the next series behind the passing of Jay McGowan, who came in for Robison.

Starting from its 31 Granada drove 69 yards in five plays.

Split end Steve Waldera caught a 29-yard strike from McGowan at the one and went in for the score. He had two other catches in the drive to set the score up.

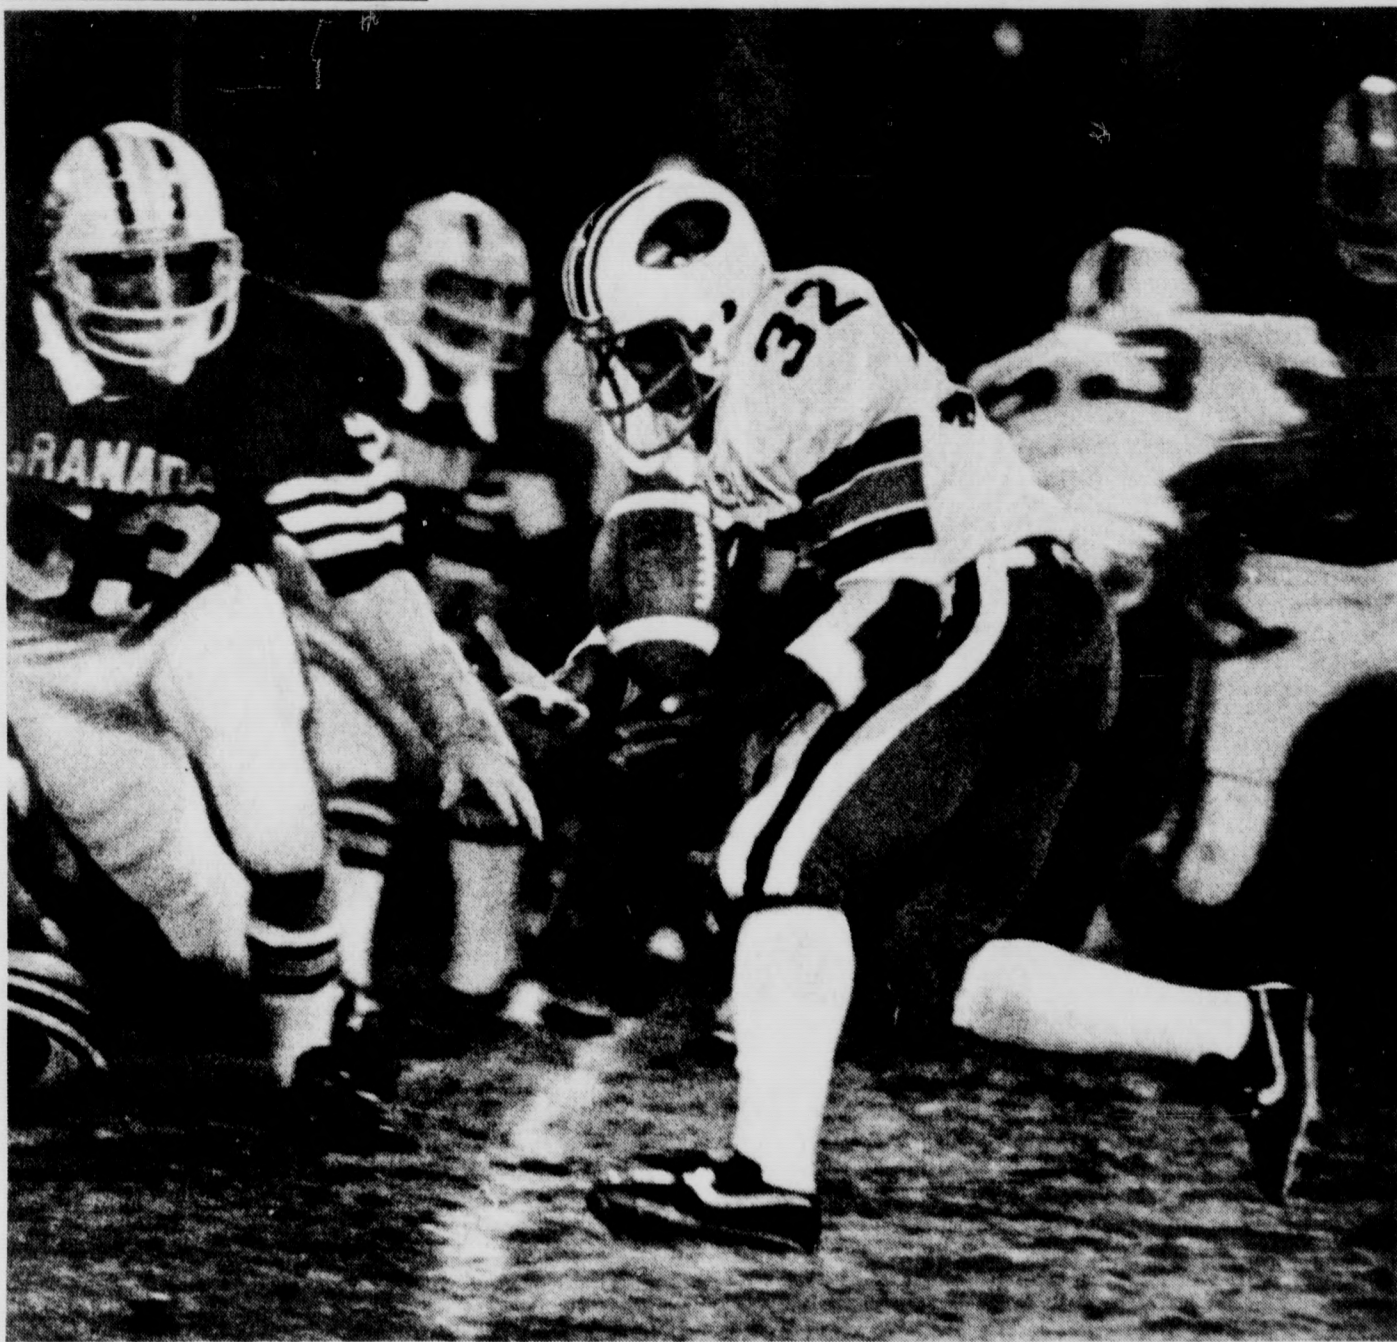

After Waldera the ball was spiked scored the ball was spiked and Granada was penalized five yards on the extra point.

That turned out to be perhaps the game's biggest penalty call. The Matadors tried an end sweep for the two-point conversion and the win but Steve D'Ambra was stopped short.

Penalties hurt the Mats throughout the game as they were hit for 10 fouls and 125 yards.

The Gaels had 266 yards total offense to 146 for the Matadors. Dublin netted 67 yards rushing with Batchelor getting 63. Granada was held to 41 yards on the ground.

—By Gary Brown Dublin's Lynn Beamon finds the ball too hot to handle, but not the Mats.

Alcott leads Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Amy Alcott of Santa Monica, Calif., scrambling from near disaster throughout the day, fired a two-under-par 70 Saturday to hold her lead through the second round of the Houston Exchange Clubs Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The 21-year-old Californian one-putted six greens and chipped in a sand shot from 20 feet away to hold off surging veteran Jo Ann Prentice of Miami, Fla., who had the day's best round of 68.

Going into Sunday's final round at the Newport Yacht and Country Club, Miss Alcott leads with a six-under-par 138 and Miss Prentice trails by one shot at 139.

In a three-way tie for third at 140 are rookie Donna White of West Palm Beach, Fla., Pat Meyers of Ormond Beach, Fla., and Marlene Floyd of Palm Springs, Calif. Miss White had the day's second best round, a three-under 69 with five birdies.

Miss Prentice, a 21-year veteran on the tour, hasn't won since 1974, but she feels the Newport layout affords her an excellent chance to break the drought.

Also in contention are Carol Mann of Towson, Md., and Alexandra Reinhardt of Albuquerque, N.M., tied for sixth place at 141.

Amador wins P-town crown over Falcons

The prematurely buried offenses of Amador Valley and Foothill were dug up from the trenches Friday night, but not enough to satisfy either coach in a 16-7 win for the Dons.

In putting a damper on the dedication night for Foothill's lighted field, coach Glenn Dufour and his team were hard put to score even 16 points against the hard-hitting Falcons.

Foothill's only touchdown came at the end of a painfully long drive covering 92 yards, five first downs and 16 plays. But that was it for the Falcons, who coughed up the ball three times and tossed a trio of interceptions.

"It's getting brutal, every week," sighed Foothill coach John Lupoi after the game in reference to the turnovers.

But Dufour wasn't ready to yet say his Don offense has come into its own. "We're our own worst enemies: I'm still disappointed," said Duff.

The Dons were first to score in the game, breaking the ice on a 28-yard field goal by Mark Schoendienst. They missed earlier opportunities to strike paydirt, the most notable coming when tailback Rob Flores, with blockers ahead of him, was pulled down by Foothill safety Scott Henderson after a 29 yard pass play from quarterback Pat Inglesby.

A frustrating half for came to an even more frustrating close for the Falcons when on the last play, Inglesby hooked up with Paul McCleary on a desperation fly pattern and a 56-yard TD pass. Schoendienst's kick made it 10-0.

After a halftime break that rivaled the length of the first half alone, play was resumed and the Falcons put together a brilliant drive of 92 yards. Quarterback Doug Stevenson found receivers Dave Girard and Sam Sisneroz open for quick slant-in passes and four first downs.

The final play of the drive, which consumed all but three minutes of the third quarter, came when Greg Costello danced over from the three.

Foothill's chances of coming back and winning the game were growing better by the moment, but a clutch punt by Inglesby and a subsequent interception by John Garcia snuffed the Falcon chances. They had boxed in the Dons at their own 13, forcing a punt from Inglesby in the end zone.

The kick spiraled its way down all the way to the Falcon 40, and two plays later Stevenson's aerial was picked off right up the middle by the rangy Garcia.

The Dons quickly drove downfield and scored on a three-yard jaunt by Mike Hoff.

Amador unveiled power-running back Ernie Zumbach in the last quarter to the befuddlement of the fans. Zumbach's no. "60" jersey just doesn't ring like bells of fullback in the head.

Explained Dufour, "He did a fine job. We brought him in from his guard position because we weren't getting the protection we needed for out backs. He has tremendous size."

And the Dons just may have found the link to an offense. Zumbach led all rushers with 77 yards on nine carries, playing only one quarter.

"Our kicking game and defense has been keeping us alive," said Dufour, whose Dons remained unbeaten at 2-0 in EBAL play. "But I'm more concerned with our own inability to correct stupid, mental mistakes."

The Falcons dropped their second EBAL contest, and have only a tie in five games to account for this season.

Fleas and ants bug homeowners

Fleas are on the increase this year! If you have been plagued by painful, itching bites when you are at home, but don't see any mosquitoes, flies, or other visible evidence of guilty parties, the culprit might be a flea.

Fleas are not flying insects. They hop — along floors or furniture, or on the bedding of pets, and can be seen upon parting the hair on infested cats or dogs. They attack people as well as pets. If infested pets roam outdoors, fleas may be found under houses and porches.

Adult fleas are blood-sucking parasites that can live several weeks or longer, without food, say Carl Koehler, entomologist, Cooperative Extension, University of California. This explains, continues Koehler, why dog or cat owners sometimes return from a vacation and find their homes overrun with the insects even though few or no adult fleas were detected in the house when the people left.

Koehler gives the following biography of the flea: The most troublesome, widespread and abundant flea found in homes is the cat flea. Adult fleas are dark, reddish-brown insects about the size of a pinhead, with three pairs of legs.

The females lay their eggs on the animals or in their sleeping places. When animals shake themselves, the eggs fall onto rugs, floors, or upholstered furniture, and roll into floor crevices or behind cushions. Within a few days, the eggs hatch into yellowish-white, slender larvae that feed on debris on floors. Hidden in floor cracks, or in other hiding places, the larvae change into pupae in silken cases in about eight days. Five to ten days later, adult fleas emerge.

To rid pets and homes of fleas, Koehler offers the following suggestions: Give immediate attention to controlling the fleas on infested animals as soon as they are noticed to prevent infestation in the home. Apply insecticides to cats and dogs to kill adult fleas, and to breeding sites to kill both larvae and adult fleas. Directions on labels should be read carefully and all safety recommendations followed.

Treating Dogs and Cats: Pets may be treated with carbaryl (Sevin R) dust, or a sorptive dust. Those under one month of age should be dusted with carbaryl. If a liquid application is preferred, use malathion. Dogs and cats that are allowed to roam freely, or come in contact with other infested animals should be treated repeatedly.

Plastic flea collars impregnated with DDVP (Vapona R) may be used. They are quite effective if fresh. Some animals react unfavorably to these collars, developing a rash. Therefore, if these are used, the animal's neck should be watched.

Treating Animal Quarters: Flea eggs are usually found on floors, bedding, or in similar locations. These sites should be thoroughly vacuumed and contents of vacuum bag burned to prevent re-infestation. An insecticide should be applied to floors (especially crevices) and to subfloor areas of animal housing. Dusts or sprays of either carbaryl or malathion are effective.

Treating Inside The Home: If the home is heavily infested, it is best to call in a professional pest control company. However, for a do-it-yourself job, first vacuum infested sites and burn contents of vacuum bag, then use an aerosol spray which lists fleas on its label as one of the insects it controls. Caution: Remember to keep small children away from insecticide-treated areas.

Treating Outside The Home: Animals often have access to areas under houses and porches and may contribute to flea infestations. Sometimes lawns and yards also become flea-ridden. These sites may be treated with carbaryl or diazinon.

Resistance to Insecticides: Koehler warns that in many areas fleas have developed a resistance to insecticides such as malathion. Carbaryl (Seven R) may be the compound of choice to control resistant fleas.

'ants are looking for water'

Ants appear to have launched a heavy attack against homeowners and apartment dwellers this year. "They are looking for water," says Carl S. Koehler, University of California entomologist, "and move around to places where water is applied."

He says the most annoying household ant in California is the Argentine ant. Long columns invade kitchens seeking, besides water, sweets. Other kinds of ants prefer fatty substances. The largest ant in California, the carpenter ant, measuring 1/2 inch or more, likes sweets, grease or dead insects.

As to counterattack, the Cooperative Extension scientist says the first step is to try to exclude the invaders. Caulk cracks and any other points of entry. This is not always easy, however, in older homes and buildings.

Koehler says toxic baits sold in syrup or paste form as "ant stakes" or "ant traps," are particularly useful when the nest cannot be found or is difficult to get to. Ant workers carry small portions of the sweet bait back to the nest where they give it to other workers, larvae, and reproductive forms. In this way, sometimes an entire colony may be killed.

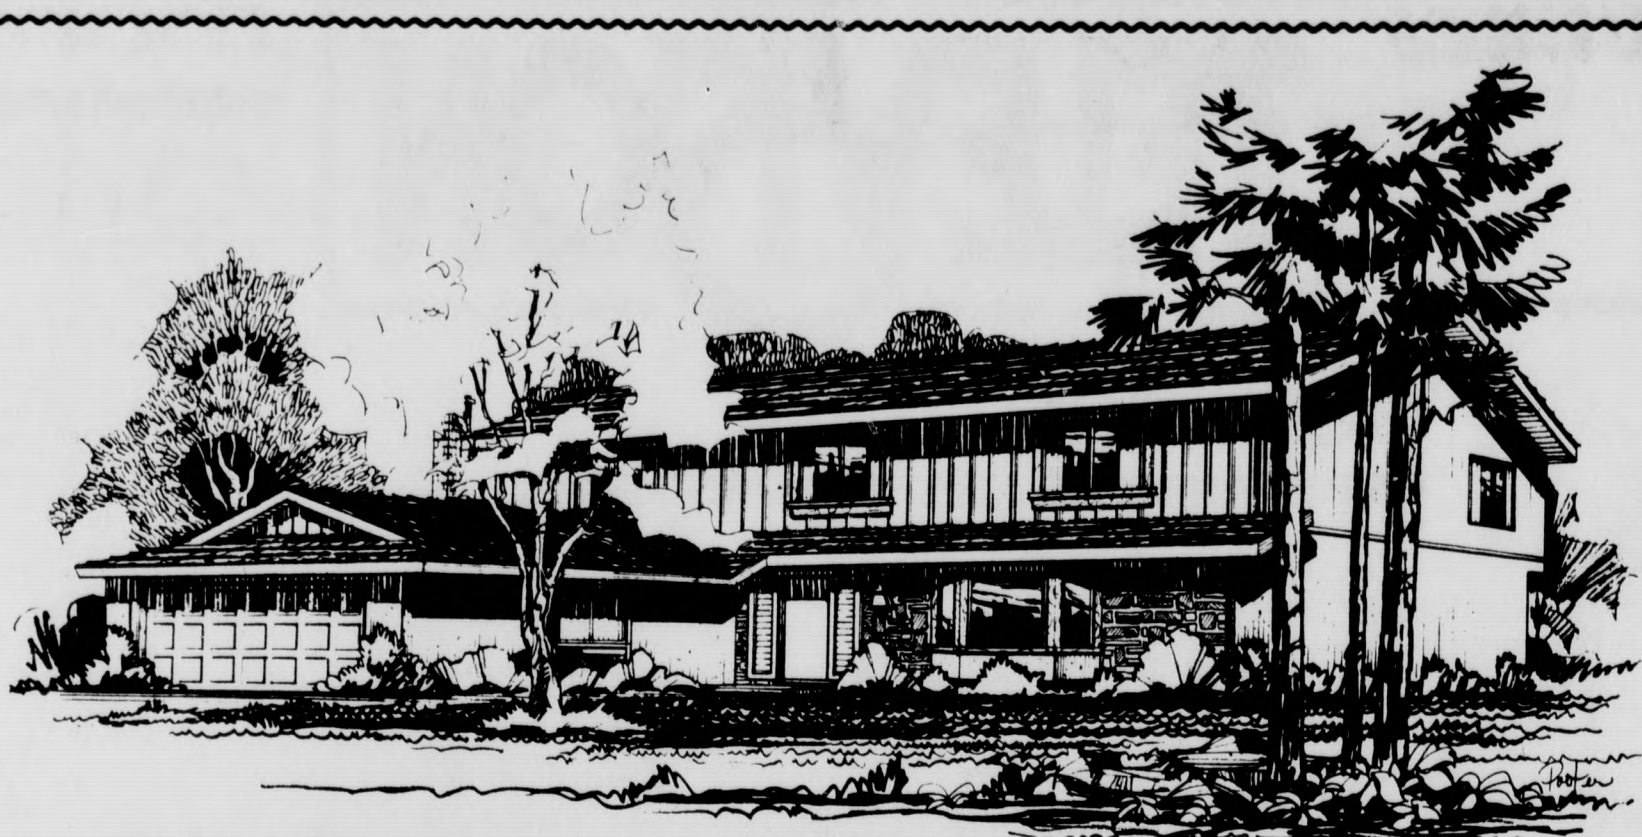

"However," he says, "control with baits may take several weeks or more. Also, ants may not eat the bait if they find something better. Be sure to remove any particles of food from cracks around sinks, drainboards and other ant-infested areas. Traps should be placed so that ants can easily find them, but in places inaccessible to children and pets."

Besides placing traps indoors, spacing them every 10-20 feet outside around the foundation and at nest openings helps to prevent the ants from entering the house.

To control ants inside the house, sprays, aerosols, and powders can also be used. "Be sure the label indicates that it is for indoor use," Koehler warns. For treatment of large areas, prediluted liquids containing diazinon or propoxur (Baygon) are less expensive than aerosols, he says. Of course, all insecticides should be kept away from food and utensils and label directions should be carefully followed.

Since most ants make their nest outdoors, treating the nest there will give more permanent control. Follow ant trails to locate the nest then spray where ants enter and leave. The spray should completely surround the nest area so that the ants will have to crawl over a treated surface.

San Ramon builder hot with sales

Business is cooking for Estate Homes of Northern California. After building houses like the one shown above in San Ramon, Pleasanton, and Fremont, Estate Homes announced they are now releasing lots for sale in hot new development in Fairfield.

One feature of the Woodcreek Estate model is the availability of a 3-car garage with each floor plan plus a great number of cul de sac lots. The latter feature reduces the fast traffic and adds safety for the children.

At Woodcreek Estates, exterior stylings run the complete gamut, from the popular contemporary, all the way to Spanish and Mediterranean plus the traditional. A special priority was assigned the planners and designers at Woodcreek Estates at its very inception. Their task was self-contained quarters into a quiet, sheltered retreat away from the demands of busy family life.

Kaiser Aetna breaks up

Oakland — Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. this week announced the signing of a definitive agreement for the dissolution of Kaiser Aetna, an eight-year-old real estate partnership owned by Kaiser Aluminum subsidiaries and Aetna Life & Casualty.

The assets and liabilities of Kaiser Aetna have been divided approximately evenly between the two partners.

Kaiser Aluminum said new financing arrangements for its properties have been concluded and that, as previously announced, the final agreement is retroactive to Jan. 1.

Under the terms of the transaction, wholly owned subsidiaries of Kaiser Aluminum — principally Kacor Realty Inc., newly formed real estate subsidiary — will retain the Pacific Division of Kaiser Aetna which includes projects in Hawaii, Guam and Australia; Rancho California, a multi-purpose development in Southern California; and the western portion of the industrial division of Kaiser Aetna, which include industrial parks and commercial properties in the West.

Navajo Youth at the Bureau of Indian Affairs Fort Wingate School near Gallup, N.M., literally built a house within a house. They constructed an 1,100 square-foot modular home with a passive solar-heating system for UC's Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. The house was built in the cavernous shop trades building at the school.

Navajos and U of C team up on solar home test

Los Alamos, N.M. — Sun symbolism is all pervasive in Navajo religion. So perhaps it isn't too surprising that Navajo high school students built a solar home, complete with a gigantic water bed to store the sun's energy, for one of the world's leading scientific laboratories.

The ultramodern structure was assembled by some 45 youngsters inside a cavernous shop at the Fort Wingate Bureau of Indian Affairs School near Gallup, New Mexico. In late August it was trucked to the University of California's Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory (LASL), where it will be evaluated by solar scientists for the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

Mobile-Modular II is the second solar-equipped home to be delivered to Los Alamos. The first employs an "active" solar system on which data have been collected since last summer. The new module features a "passive" solar system.

Stan Moore, LASL engineer and solar module program manager, says the first two modular homes, and two others that may be constructed in the future with both heating and cooling solar systems, could have a considerable impact on manufactured housing in the United States.

Last July Moore gave a tour of the module to Navajo Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald while it was still under construction. MacDonald, impressed with the quality workmanship of the Navajo students, said increased exposure to modern technology is "a must for our young people. The Navajo Nation's vast energy resources mean we must become leading proponents in the energy development and management field."

MacDonald noted, too, that "Of the three or four thousand Navajo college students, only a handful are enrolled in science courses, when at least half of them should be. The pioneering experience of this kind of program has great meaning for the Navajos."

About 45 youngsters were involved in building the solar home, which was designed by the noted solar architect Bill Mingenbach of he Architects, Taos, N.M.

Coping with recession jitters

Washington D.C. — Common sense in interpreting fluctuating month-to-month indicators of the state of the economy is advised by the National Association of Realtors.

This will help prevent "recession jitters" from capturing the minds of some economic analysts, the association says.

In its monthly real estate status report, the association's Department of Economics and Research points out that some analysts were caught napping in late 1973 when the economy started its downward slide.

As a result, the report says, they have been afflicted with the recession jitters in the wake of some unfavorable economic news.

Despite a continued drop in the leading economic indicators, a dip in industrial output and an increase by the Federal Reserve in the discount rate, the report points to a number of positive signs that should not be ignored. Among them:

— New records for total employment.

— A brisk pace of new home construction.

— Record levels of existing home sales.

Based on reports from about two-thirds of the sample used in compiling existing (resale) home sales data, between 3,590,000 and 3,690,000 existing homes were sold in August on a seasonally adjusted annual rate basis. This easily would surpass the previous record of 3,510,000 set just a month earlier.

The substantial drop in new home sales of 15.9 per cent in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 672,000 should be regarded as no more than a single month's gyrations, the realtor's researchers believe, and not as the beginning of a downturn in the market.

Demand for single-family homes is still strong, they believe, and sales are expected to hold up well for the foreseeable future.

New home construction continues at a respectable rate, the report says, with 2,022,000 starts in August, on a seasonally adjusted annual rate basis. Of that total, 1,440,000 units were single-family, about the level reached for the past seven consecutive months.

Look around the Bay Area and compare prices, you'll find you don't have to sacrifice to buy your first home. At beautiful Greenleaf in Tracy, you'll discover 3 and 4 bedroom floor plans with twelve different architectural styles. All priced well below the same sized homes in neighboring locations.

Greenleaf is tucked into a rustic country setting... conveniently close to the city. That means you get the quiet luxury of the country with city amenities nearby. And Greenleaf homes are distinctively designed to fit this unique community style... and yours.

There's wall-to-wall carpeting throughout each house, huge master bedrooms, Gaffers and Sattler kitchen appliances, and even full air conditioning already installed and operating. All at no extra cost. When you choose a Greenleaf home for your first, you get the best. And best of all, it's affordable. Greenleaf prices start in the high $40,000 range!

Come to Greenleaf for affordable living in the East Bay. Just take Interstate 205 east and exit at Grant Line Road. Continue east to Lincoln Blvd. and the furnished models.

Call (209) 835-9604.

Dublin zoning bids time

A request to rezone 21 acres on Dublin Boulevard and San Ramon Road to commercial has been continued to Dec. 8 by county supervisors.

The request has come to them from time to time, but been continued pending the fate of the various amendments to the Valley's segment of the county general plan.

Supervisors decided that fate with a preliminary vote recently, but according to form it must go back to the planning commission and return to the supervisors for final consideration. Dec. 8 is the day they expect it back.

The first time around, the supervisors voted to keep the general plan status quo, namely commercial along San Ramon Boulevard, but with a residential buffer behind the commercial areas. It's expected they'll vote that way the second time, too, and since zoning follows the general plan by law, that's how the zoning will wind up.
